32 Killed in Airliner Crash

A SURVIVOR IS CARRIED INTO THE HOSPITAL

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — A Northeast Airlines plane carrying 39 passengers and a crew of three crashed in a fog and burned 600 feet from the top of 2,700-foot Moose Mountain near Hanover Friday night. Thirty-two died. Helicopters took the 10 survivors off the mountain.

Northeast said the pilot, Capt. John A. Rapsis, 52, of Nashua, N.H., with the airline 14 years, had made the trip "hundreds of times." He was not among the survivors.

Among the injured were the stewardess, Miss Betty J. Frail, 21, of Berkeley Heights, N.J., and Winthrop, Mass.; Robert Kimball, 45, assistant dean of Tuck Business School, Dartmouth College, and Dr. Richard L. Veech of Oxford, England.

All three were reported in satisfactory condition at Mary Hitchcock Hospital, Hanover.

The hospital said one of the injured, Bernard Desmond Jr. of Springfield, Vt., was in critical condition. He suffered head injuries. The rescue helicopters landed in the glare of auto headlights on the campus green at Dartmouth College. Ambulances whisked the injured three blocks to the hospital.

10 Survivors

Hanover Police Chief Dennis J. Cooney told newsmen at the hospital that 10 survivors had been brought in "and that's it."

Rescuers who had labored for hours in the rough, rocky terrain, guided at times only by flashlights, suspended work until daybreak.

"There was a terrible crash and the plane burst into flames," said a witness, Parmlly R. Willis, 39, of Lebanon.

Willis said he was returning to his car after hunting deer with an hour and a half after the plane's scheduled 5:30 p.m. arrival at Lebanon, Northeast announced it was overdue.

Almost simultaneously, a fire that lit the sky was spotted high on Moose Mountain and fire fighters and volunteers began the tortuous climb.

A fire fighter who said he was one of the first to reach the wreckage, Jean St. Hilaire, 45, said he drove up in a jeep about a mile and a half, then hiked a mile to the scene.

"It was still burning, but there was nothing left of the plane. The front of it was all smashed. The injured were huddled together and a doctor who was a passenger on the plane was trying to help. But he didn't have the equipment he needed. Most of the survivors were in shock."

Another fireman, Steve Mack, 30, said a male passenger told him he was apparently thrown from the plane in his seat and tumbled down the mountain into a tree. Mack did not know the man's name.

"He told me he must have been thrown a good 300 feet down the mountain and found himself hanging upside down in a tree, still in his seat. He said he released his seat belt and dropped to the ground. Fortunately, he was close to the ground and wasn't hurt."

Carry Out Survivors

Two women and a man walked to the helicopter landing area. The other survivors were carried out. The helicopters brought in doctors and medical supplies.

Attempts to use bulldozers to make a road to the crash site were abandoned.

The plane was making an approach to Lebanon airport when it crashed seven miles northeast of the field. The U.S. Weather Bureau in Boston said there was overcast at 2,000 feet at Lebanon, low enough to obscure higher peaks.

Other Crew Members

In addition to Capt. Rapsis and stewardess Frail, the crew included First Officer John C. O'Neill, 29, of Lake Ariel, Pa., and Revere, Mass. O'Neill had been with Northeast since May 1967 and Miss Frail since last June.

In Washington, the National Transportation Safety Board announced it was sending an investigating team to the scene.

Northeast Airlines released a partial list of persons who died in the crash.

The list:

1. Miss S. Angelico, 31 Grant St., Norwich, Conn. Graham Junior College, Boston.

2. Miss C. Benedini, Barre, Vt.

3. Miss Liane Birnbaum, father lives in Scarsdale, N.Y.

4. Miss Cindy Damon, 20, Tamworth, N.H.

5. Miss Martha Dill, Greenwich, Conn.

6. F. Feola, 30, 10 Vine St., Montpelier, Vt.

7. Terry Hudson, 33, RFD, Plainfield, Vt.

8. P. Havalka, 28, RFD, Plainfield, Vt.

9. Miss Patricia Indence of 5 Maxwell Port, Huntington, N.Y.

10. Miss Sharon Linnell, 77 Mason Terrace, Brookline, Mass.

11. Ollie Magalasky, Tunbridge, Vt.

12. Mrs. Ollie Magalasky, Tunbridge.

13. R. McLaughlin, Bixby St., Lebanon, N.H.

14. Miss Valerie Plunkett, 19, Barre, Vt.

15. Edmund Rousse, believed from Burlington, Vt.

16. Mrs. Ilse Rawson, 14 Center St., Cambridge, Mass.

17. Miss Barbara Swift, 9 Spring St., Framingham, Mass.

WRECKAGE OF THE PROP JET IN WHICH 32 DIED

Johnson Presses Ahead With Negotiations

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (P) — Despite an angry denial from Hanoi of any bombing-halt deal, President Johnson was reported today to be pressing ahead with secret negotiations for an agreement with North Vietnam to de-escalate the war.

While the Hanoi blast could be read as a rejection of Johnson's still secret proposals, authorities chose to interpret it as a propaganda attack which did not necessarily reflect the final decision of North Vietnamese leaders.

The broadcast by Hanoi radio Friday, however, was receiving careful study.

As reported in press dispatches from Hong Kong, it said:

"Statements by U.S. propagandists that Hanoi has accepted U.S. conditions in return for a bombing halt are nothing but deliberate lies."

Washington authorities took the position that there was still at least an even chance, probably better, for reaching some understanding on scaling down the war and advancing the Paris peace talks which would enable Johnson to end the bombing in the near future. This estimate presumably figured in a statement made Friday by Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon in New York.

"I am told," Nixon said, "that top officials in the administration have been driving very hard for an agreement on a lull began. Story on page 14.

bombing halt, accompanied possibly by a cease-fire, in the immediate future. I have since learned these reports are true."

Another Hanoi broadcast recorded by U.S. radio monitors and made available in Washington, spotlighted in North Vietnamese terms the two issues widely reported as being at the heart of the negotiations for the past several weeks.

Johnson's principal conditions for a bombing halt have been reported to be that North Vietnam agree to scale down its military activities or at least to freeze the present lull in the fighting, and agree to start a second phase of the Paris peace talks in which the South Vietnamese government would participate.

Besides demanding a halt in the bombing without any such agreements, North Vietnam has maintained the public position for several years that the National Liberation Front must approve the National Liberation

Front's presence at the negotiating table only if representatives were a part of the Hanoi delegation. There has been speculation that President Johnson might at some point consider the present lull in the war as a possibly sufficient basis for ending the bombing, perhaps with the reservation that if Hanoi launched a new offensive it could be resumed.

to carry his allies in the Vietnam war along with him.

News dispatches from Saigon reported Friday that President Nguyen Van Thieu had informed U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker that he would approve the National Liberation

Front's presence at the negotiating table only if representatives were a part of the Hanoi delegation. There has been speculation that President Johnson might at some point consider the present lull in the war as a possibly sufficient basis for ending the bombing, perhaps with the reservation that if Hanoi launched a new offensive it could be resumed.

These are believed to have been the principal sticking points in the negotiations under way the past several weeks on a bombing halt. They have been complicated by Johnson's need

Red Cosmonaut in Orbit

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union sent a 47-year-old cosmonaut into orbit around the earth today and the Tass news agency said he had rendezvoused in space with an unmanned spaceship launched secretly on Friday.

East European sources said Col. Georgy Beregovoi, decorated during World War II for his "courage and heroism" in battle, might follow the trail blazed by unmanned Zond 5 in September around the moon and back to a safe landing on earth.

More cautious sources said the Soviets would almost certainly attempt such an experiment with an animal before hazarding a cosmonaut's life in the perilous reentry into earth's atmosphere from such a mission. The Russians used dogs on early space flight tests. Beregovoi shot into an almost circular orbit around the earth at 11:34 a.m. (4:34 a.m. EDT) on an undisclosed mission. It reported the flier well, the pressure and temperature in his space ship Soyuz-3 normal and all systems functioning.

Soyuz 3 is the successor of Soyuz 1 in which Col. Vladimir Komarov was killed in the last Soviet space launch 18 months ago when his parachutes failed to function properly during his descent to earth and the spacecraft plummeted to the ground.

Today's Russian launch followed by less than a week the spectacular flight of America's Apollo 7 in which astronauts Walter Schirra, Walt Cunningham and Donn Eisele completed a flight of 11 days that covered 4.5 million miles—4 million more than the round trip to the moon.

The U.S. Apollo 8 flight is scheduled for December with space officials debating whether to send it around the moon to clear the way for a manned landing on the planet by Apollo 10 sometime next year.

Crowds in Red Square, many of them in town from outlying parts of Russia for the 50th anniversary of the Komsomol Communist youth organization, cheered and clapped as the announcement of the Russian space flight boomed from loudspeakers.

"It's a triumph," "We're very happy," "How wonderful!" "I wish him a safe return," were some of the comments from the young Komsomol members, some of them in colorful folk costumes, and from Muscovites answering radio interviewers.

The interviews were broadcast over a sound truck rolled up to the decorated square for the occasion.

A few score yards away, in the Kremlin Wall, were the ashes of the world's first spaceman, Col. Yuri Gagarin, killed in a jet trainer crash in March of this year, and Colonel Komarov, who died in the Soyuz 1 crash in April 1967.

Beregovoi was circling the earth every 88.6 minutes. His flight was taking him to a high point of 139 miles and a low point of 127 miles at an angle to the equator of 51.40 degrees. The orbit was almost identical, though a few miles higher, than that of the ill-fated Soyuz 1.

Four Drug Arrests in New Paltz

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

Four area residents, ranging in ages from 16 to 21, are in the county jail today after having been arraigned on narcotics charges in New Paltz last night.

According to village of New Paltz police, a car driven by 18-year-old James Davis of Kerkonkson, was stopped on Plattekill Avenue in New Paltz at 9 p. m. on a routine vehicle and traffic check.

As the Davis car slowed to a halt, village police officers Richard Thompson and Nicholas Pape spotted one of the occupants of the car toss a packet out of a window of the vehicle.

The packet was found to contain marijuana.

Arrested were Davis, Robert A. Stegen, 21, of New Paltz, Scott Heitman, 16, of Route 209 in Stone Ridge, and 21-year-old Linda Talestine of New Paltz.

Stegen, already out on $500 bail, having been arrested for the same charges on Aug. 24, was charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug (marijuana) and criminal possession of an instrument used in the administering of drugs (a hypodermic needle).

Town Justice Rexford Schneider set Stegen's bail at $1,000—$250 for possession of the hypodermic needle and $750 for possessing the marijuana.

Justice Schneider set Davis' bail at $500.

Davis, along with Heitman and Miss Talestine, were charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug.

Both Heitman and Miss Talestine's bail was set at $250 each.

The foursome were remanded to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of the bail.

Justice Schneider set the preliminary hearing for Nov. 1 at the New Paltz Town and Village Hall.

The four arrests brought to 23 the number of those arrested in New Paltz on narcotics charges since Jan. 1.

Village police arrested 14 persons on narcotics charges since January.

In April, a narcotics raid staged by the Ulster County District Attorney's office and area law enforcement officials netted nine persons in the New Paltz area.

None of those arrested last night were students at the State University College.

A police officer at New Paltz explained that a routine vehicle and traffic check can be made for a number of reasons.

He said the car may have been going too fast, or ran a stop sign, or appeared in a bad state of repair.

He also said that the vehicle could have been stopped if the occupants seemed suspicious.

The New Paltz Village and Town Hall, which houses the police station, is also located on the same street where the arrests were made — Plattekill Avenue.

New Rector Named For St. Gregory's

Former priest-in-charge of the Episcopal Church of Christ the King, Stone Ridge, the Rev. David W. Arnold, has been appointed priest and vicar of St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, Woodstock.

As his first assignment following ordination in 1954 was as priest-in-charge of the former churches of St. John's, High Falls, All Saints', Rosendale and St. Peter's, Stone Ridge. During his eight years in Ulster County, the three mission congregations consolidated into the Episcopal Church of Christ the King and completed a $150,000 building program and site relocation as the first church complex in the 175th anniversary campaign of the Diocese of New York.

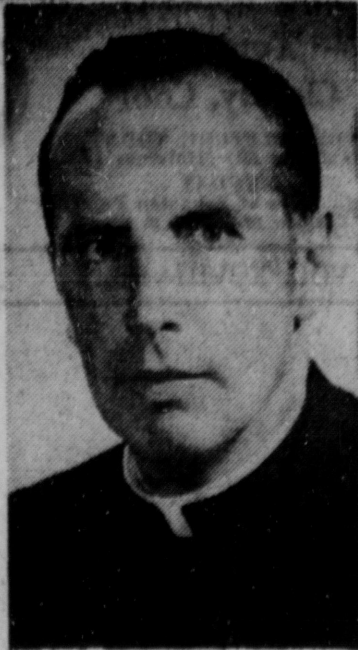

Since June 1962, Father Arnold has been rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, New City, Rockland County where he led the congregation during a $260,000 building program.

A graduate of State University of New York at Plattsburgh and Berkeley Divinity School of Yale University, Father Arnold has been active in the Diocese, particularly in youth committees.

During his previous residence in Ulster County, Father Arnold was county deputy fire coordinator in charge of communications and training as well as chaplain and member of the Ulster County Fire Chief's Association. He is a charter member and second deputy chief chaplain of the New York State Association of Fire Department Chaplains, the only organization of its sort in the county.

His service at the Woodstock church started Oct. 15. Father Arnold and his family will move to the vicarage at 42 Whitney Drive, Woodstock, Nov. 7.

REV. DAVID W. ARNOLD

Speaker Named For Services At Fair Street

Guest preacher for special services commemorating the 451st anniversary of the Reformation this Sunday at the Fair Street Reformed Church, will be the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly from St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, this city.

Father Farrelly will preach at both the 9:30 and 11 o'clock services and will be greeted by members of the parish during a coffee hour in the church parish room between services.

The Revs. Ebenezer Mane and Edwin Coon of the church will lead the congregation in the liturgy of worship. The senior choir, under the direction of Percy W. Gazlay II, with Mrs. Helen Ling at the organ console, will sing two special anthems: Walk Worthy by Hubert Grieh, an anthem which follows the theme of Christian unity; and the Latin version of Sanctus from St. Cecilia Mass by Gounod.

Father Farrelly, an active leader in many areas of community service, was born in New York City and educated in Morristown, New Jersey, where he spent most of his childhood. A graduate of St. Joseph's Seminary in Yonkers, in 1948 he was ordained by Cardinal Spellman at St. Patrick's Cathedral and began his work at St. Mary's Church. Vitality concerned in ecumenical matters, Father Farrelly has participated in the Unity Services sponsored by the Roman Catholic Church and the local Council of Churches, and has been a regular participant in the monthly Clergy Dialogue sessions held in Kingston.

This Sunday will be the first occasion that a Roman Catholic

Dyson Gives Proposals to Curb Inflation

"To curb inflation and maintain a strong, healthy economy—so necessary for our continual progress—we must develop an active partnership between private enterprise and government," declared John Dyson in a debate last night in Catskill.

The major segment of the Democratic Congressional candidate's remarks was an analysis of our economic problems and proposals for joint public-private programs "to deal with the economic problems of welfare, wasteful spending, high joblessness, and inflation."

Dyson's proposals included: Inflation—"although our present economic situation is not perfect, it is a far cry from the Republican years in the 1950's when the nation experienced three recessions over an eight-year period."

However, Dyson expressed concern over the shrinking value of the dollar and outlined a four-point program to curb the inflationary spiral.

"First," Dyson said, "business and labor must cooperate with government to keep wages and profits in line with increases in productivity. Second, Congress, with the advice of private enterprise, must increase and decrease taxes and spending in a pattern to keep the economy on a steady course. Third, the Federal Reserve Board must take strong steps to control the supply of money whenever inflation threatens."

"Finally," Dyson said, "Congress should investigate tax allowances for oil depletion, obsolescence, depreciation, and business investment to determine their inflationary effects."

As for lowering taxes and ending wasteful spending, the Democratic nominee asserted that the recent surtax would not have been necessary "had Congress passed a program of tax reform and cut unnecessary governmental spending."

Dyson's program for tax reform which, he declared, "would eliminate the present inequities to the little man," includes ending the oil depletion allowance and reducing the sizable deduction some wealthy people claim under our present Internal Revenue setup.

Turning to governmental spending, Dyson proposed "a new Hoover Commission composed of non-governmental officials to wade through and evaluate our present programs to establish priorities among them for future spending and recommend cuts in other programs."

On reducing welfare and creating jobs, Dyson noted that our welfare system "which grants eight billion dollars to eight million people each year is a serious drain on our economy."

To correct this, Dyson called for "increased job training programs to get employable people off the relief rolls and on pay-rolls." He explained that this training could be accomplished by a joint private training, governmental financed program.

Concluding, the Congressional candidate indicated the type of Congressman he intended to be: "If elected, I will not be a businessmen's congressman, nor a labor union congressman, not a farmers' congressman, but a strong leader who is deeply concerned about overall health of our economy and will strive to improve the standard of living for every American."

Woolley Raps Rolison Action In State Senate

A. E. "Al" Woolley, Democratic candidate for the State Senate, stated, "The air is filled with the excitement of change. There is no room for the complacency that is currently the attitude with the incumbent Republican."

Woolley also called for the election of those in a non-legal profession and he pointed out that 46 of the 57 state senators are lawyers.

"We have many complex problems in our cities. We need people in Albany who are sensitive to these problems. My work in education has made me sensitive to these problems," the Democratic candidate declared.

Woolley stated that, "Throughout this campaign I have offered constructive suggestions that could become workable legislation," and he declared that present State Senator Jay P. Rolison "simply states that he was on some committees in Albany. Any elected legislator is appointed to committees."

The State Senatorial candidate further said that Rolison "has yet to offer a single proposition which will benefit the citizens of Ulster and Dutchess Counties."

Woolley also declared that Rolison "never authored any legislation. He has only introduced or co-sponsored bills prepared by someone else."

Referring to the recent Dutchess County Community College balloting which gave him one vote more than his Republican opponent, Woolley said, "The vote giving me the election indicates the desire for change, the desire to place the blame on the incumbent for his vote on the pension plan, the desire to elect someone who will establish a district office, and the desire to elect someone who is sensitive to the problems of the district."

"MEET THE CANDIDATES" TEA—Discussing final plans for the "Meet the Candidates" tea which has been scheduled for Sunday from 4 to 7 p. m. at Trinity United Methodist Church, Wurts and Hunter Streets, Kingston, are (l-r) Mrs. Leonard VanDyke, hostess; Miss Jacqueline Jeffress, co-chairman; and Mrs. Dallas Gay, one of the parents from Roundout Day-Care Center which is sponsoring the event. Mrs. Irving Bell is chairman of the tea, assisted by members of the staff at the Center. Other hostesses include Mrs. Everett Hodge and Mrs. Elise Nuse. The public is invited. ## Deputy Takes Issue; Charges by Mayone Claiming that, "My training is as a service by the state at not an isolated instance but a general rule," an Ulster County Deputy Sheriff took issue today with recent charges made by the Republican candidate for sheriff.

Deputy Sheriff Robert W. Jordan of Ulster Park labeled charges made by Thomas Mayone that there was a lack of training in the present department, "half truths and political intrigue."

9 Years Service
Deputy Jordan stated, "I have been associated with the Sheriff's Department for over nine years," and he went on to declare that under Sheriff William B. Martin's administration, "I have attended the eight week (320 hour) basic Police Course given at Rockland County Community College, provided the armory, and Riot Control at Camp Smith in Peekskill."

Was Part-Time Deputy

Jordan said, "In 1961 under Bell's administration, I became a part-time regular deputy, working an average of 30 hours a week. During this tenure I was regularly employed elsewhere on a full time basis."

He continued by saying, "In 1966, under the administration of William B. Martin, I became a full-time regular deputy."

The deputy declared, "Being an enrolled Republican, but working under both administrations during the years, I feel it imperative that this information be brought to the attention of your readers because my training is not an isolated instance but a general rule."

Fish Urges State to Reject Penn-Central RR Request

Hamilton Fish Jr., today urged the New York State Public Service Commission to reject an application by the Penn-Central Railroad that would delay passenger service to Dutchess and Columbia County destinations.

The application by Penn-Central requests a change in schedule of the 6:55 p.m. train, No. 955, from Grand Central Station to Brewster, Dover Plains, and ending in Chatham.

The application states it wishes to add local stops south of Brewster, thus delaying arrival times up the line.

"This request," the Republican candidate for Congress declared, "would have the net effect of inconveniencing passengers to Pawling, etc., to the extent that it could force passengers to seek other modes of transportation."

Fish said that the Commission's responsibility was to protect the public. He noted that such a change would discourage passenger use, thus injuring the railroad itself.

"Penn-Central's application is the most self-defeating proposal I've studied to date."

He further stated, "Maybe the railroad simply wishes to create a situation which will give cause for them to cancel all passenger service north of Brewster completely."

Newcombe to Speak To Olive Republicans

Jack Malloy, president of the Town of Olive Republican Club, announced today that former State Senator Lloyd A. Newcombe of Catskill will be the guest speaker at the club's meeting which will be held tonight at 8 p.m. at the Odd Fellows Hall.

Newcombe, who has been speaking throughout the 28th Congressional District on behalf of the candidacy of Hamilton Fish Jr., will discuss the importance of this election to the Republican party and the necessity of electing representatives at every level of government.

Report Given On Finch Night

A report on the Meet-The-Candidate Night, held this week at 156 Downs Street, and sponsored by the Citizens Committee for the Election of Finch, was issued today by Joseph Spada, publicity chairman for Jack Finch, Democratic candidate for alderman of the new Fifth Ward.

Don Snyder was chairman for the event which enabled voters of the new Fifth Ward to meet Finch and discuss the main issues confronting them. At the social affair, Finch was able to answer questions which had arisen since the issuance of his nine point platform weeks ago and discuss other new ideas which have been proposed since that time.

Among points suggested were a Teen-Corps, Vest-Pocket parks, improved street lighting, direct truck routes, bus stop benches and Finch's own direct communication line with residents of his ward.

Secretaries Hear About Dutch Settlement

Members of the National Secretaries Association (International) met on Monday evening, Oct. 21, in the Governor Clinton Hotel for a dinner meeting, and heard Byron P. Connell, instructor in history at the Ulster County Community College, who gave a short talk about the early Dutch settlement in the Hudson valley.

In 1664 the Dutch had a flourishing colony here, but the population was small and the financial return to Holland was not great. The Dutch had difficulty in providing enough colonists and sufficient support to ensure the growth and prosperity of the colony. When William III of England sailed his fleet into New Amsterdam in 1664 and seized control of the government, there was not a tremendous uproar in Holland. A liberal new charter had been granted by William III who tried in a number of ways to appease the Dutch population here in the new world. Free exit from the colony was provided for all for six months following the seizure, but not many left. Declaration of war was made in 1665, but neither side had much heart for fighting on land and most of the battles took place at sea. When the war ended in 1667 it was because the Dutch had gained a temporary advantage through a couple of naval victories. In the treaty at Breda, Holland the Dutch were able to obtain a reasonable number of concessions from the English, but surprisingly they did not want New Netherlands, which had been a drain on their finances.

Instead of New Netherlands, the Dutch took Surinam in Dutch Guinea to provide ports for Dutch trade in the Caribbean. In 1775, the center of the American revolution was in New England, and if New Netherlands had remained in the hands of the Dutch, the revolution might well have been confined to the New England area; and without the help of the other colonies, it might not have succeeded. So it would seem that William III of England deserves thanks for his decision to grab New Netherlands in 1664.

Miss Mildred Weitkamp, C.P.S. of Hackensack, corresponding secretary of the New York State division, was the next speaker. Miss Weitkamp outlined details of the new membership campaign for the various chapters of the N.S.A. She also presented the Colonial Valley Chapter with a gift for the penny social which is to be held on Friday evening, Nov. 8, at the Elk's Lodge Hall, 264 Fair Street, Kingston.

Other guests were Miss Audrey Countryman from the Ulster County Community College and Mrs. Catherine Dayger, formerly of the New York State College at New Paltz.

On October 25th three members from the Colonial Valley Chapter attended the 1968 Northeast District Conference in Philadelphia. The theme of the week-end meeting was "Quality is the Result of Intelligent Effort," with emphasis on education. The members who attended were Mrs. Gloria Starling of the Rondout Valley Central Schools; Mrs. Elsa Secor of IBM; and Mrs. Bea Edwards of Rotron.

The next meeting of the National Secretaries Association will be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Monday, Nov. 18. At that meeting "Getting to Know You" will be the order of the evening, and all members are urged to attend.

OUTSTANDING YOUTH — Frank Meyer Jr., Saugerties High School senior, receives Young American Award for October from David W. Mountford, manager of the local Montgomery Ward store, sponsors of the youth recognition program. His parents, at left, were on hand for the presentation and award dinner Thursday night at the Kirkland Hotel, this city.

Youth Winner Conquers All

By JEAN F. DOLAN

"Outstanding" is not a big enough word to describe Frank Meyer Jr., winner of the October Young American award. The 18-year old Saugerties youth, totally blind since he was 15, is a varsity letterman, a member of the National Honor Society, student council and school newspaper staff at SHS. Undaunted by his affliction, Frank is a member of the cross country track team at Saugerties High and won his letter as a winning member of the wrestling team. Track seems an unlikely sport for a blind boy, but Frank has overcome the obvious obstacles by running buddy system with a friend. The track activities are "mainly to keep in shape."

Senior This Year

A senior this year, the handsome young man plans hopefully to continue his education at Syracuse University majoring in sociology for a liberal arts degree.

His blindness is the result of a detached retina. Just before his 16th birthday he was hospitalized and underwent treatment for four months. When he returned home, he immediately went back to school and the activities he had enjoyed before total blindness.

His father, Frank Meyer Sr. of 108 Elm Street, Saugerties, credited the Saugerties High School faculty and student body with helping Frank make the initial adjustment.

"They were just terrific," he said in guiding Frank to classes and assisting with studies.

During that summer, Frank went to Batavia School for the Blind in western New York State where he learned all kinds of skills to help in his new life. He mastered travel with the aid of a cane, Braille reading and typing on both Braille and regulation machines.

As he started his junior year, the whirl of scholastic activities resumed full force. He served as vice president of the student council and was selected for senior seminar. It was also during his junior year that he achieved fame for his wrestling team wins.

Commended for Courage

Dr. George Hamaty, principal of the High School, commended Frank for his courage and sensitivity. In recommending him for the Young American award, the school administrator said, "He has overcome a tremendous obstacle and has become one of the most active and honored students in the entire student body. He is an inspiration to all of us."

He is positive; he is honest; he is forthright and he does not ask to be pitied but just to be accepted as any other member of the student body.

It is not all books and school for Frank either. An accomplished accordionist, he finds time to play with a group of guitar strumming friends just for fun and sometimes for organizations in the Saugerties area.

The Young American award was presented to the youth at a dinner Thursday night at the Kirkland Hotel. He and his parents were honored guests for the occasion. David W. Mountford, manager of the local Montgomery Ward store made the presentation.

The Young American award program sponsored by Montgomery Ward is designed to recognize the achievements of outstanding young people. In Frank they have a real winner. The program has been underway locally for the past three years. Richard L. Treat, general manager and vice president of the Kingston Freeman, has served as chairman of the selection committee for the past two years.

Both Frank and his parents were "very pleased" at his selection as October's Young American.

The Teen Scene

Halloween Horrors

by LEI

Halloween means something different to everyone. To the little kids, it's a chance to dress up in costumes and haunt the neighbors. For the religious, it still retains some of its sacred origins. For the merchant, it is an opportunity for a sales promotion, and for the horror fan—there's always the chance that the next ghost might be the real thing!

The only people scared by all the spooky doings are the very little kids, who sometimes can't believe that one of their playmates is inside of that realistic gorilla suit—and the grownup property owner, who wonders what those unprintable kids are going to do to wreck his belongings THIS year.

Of course, the majority of teenagers are willing to attend or give a Halloween party, take their little brothers and sisters trick-or-treating, and then curl up in a dark room with a black cat and a Poe book. Unfortunately, the minority that does use Halloween as an excuse for vandalism must be very busy—or not such a minority, after all.

In several communities, adults have retaliated by forbidding ANY celebration of Halloween, by clamping down rediculous curfews—or, in a few cases, by lying in wait for pranksters with a shotgun full of birdshot. Usually, these tactics are not the answer, and while they may keep the property safe on Halloween—wait until Nov. 2!

It would do a lot to help the "image" of Halloween if those teenagers who cannot resist joining the ghouls and goblins on the streets were to play their tricks with two thoughts in mind.

1. No tricks that endanger the life or health of any human or animal—your own or anybody else's. Breaking traffic lights, shooting at windows, stealing traffic signs or hurling firecrackers at children or pets are not pranks. The life they could cost might be that of one of your family or one of your friends. The world has enough ghosts without making more.

2. No permanent property damage. Broken windows, trampled gardens, and spray-painted porches are all-too-lasting reminders of what stinkers we kids are. You can play enough havoc with water-base paints, soap, spray foam, eggs, and an attentive eye for loose signs—providing you leave the latter in a safe place where the owner can find them and rehang them—more securely.

And, next day, why don't you pay for your fun by "undoing" at least one prank—your own, or somebody else's. After you've painted out dirty words from a storefront or rehanging a gate or two, you may find you feel less called by the haunts next year. Remember, in another 20 years, it'll probably be your gate the spirits make off with.

For adults, this Halloween, we suggest they keep their sense of humor and proportion—and make sure that all those signs and gates are securely fastened, and that the porch light is on and somebody is watching out for those more interested in tricks than treats.

Us? Well, after we decorate some of the political posters with crossed eyes and beards, we're going to stay in and be good. It's time we become retired ghouls. . .

Saugerties Group Plans for CYO Week

Sunday will mark the opening of National CYO Week. The theme for this year's activities is Youth-Witness to a Living Faith.

To open CYO week in Saugerties, St. Mary's elementary members will attend the 9 a.m. Mass and receive Holy Communion with a breakfast to be served in the school cafeteria following the Mass.

On Saturday, Nov. 2, a Halloween Dance for members from grades 6, 7, 8 will be held in the school hall. Roller skating is conducted on Friday evenings in the school hall under the direction of Raymond Christiana and Frank Caffey.

Joseph Ollinger is in charge of the basketball team which is practicing every Saturday morning at 9 a.m. in the Roger Donlon Auditorium.

The climax of CYO week is the awards ceremony at St. Patrick's Cathedral and the date this year is Sunday, Nov. 3, at 2 p.m. As in the past, St. Mary of the Snow Parish will be well represented.

Receiving the Christus Rex Award which symbolizes outstanding elementary school age members will be Deborah Dargin, Betsy Shaeffer, and John Blundell.

The Cardinal Spellman Youth Award for High School members who have offered a significant contribution to their CYO program and have been faithful to their religious duties has been awarded to Christine Mahony, Eileen Gilbane, and Nancy Christiana. Receiving the Parish volunteer award for outstanding and dedicated service to the youth of the parish are Jo Ann Cook and Joseph Buser.

The total membership of St. Mary of the Snow CYO is 267 with 203 elementary members and 64 teen-agers. The Rev. Joseph Hamilton is the moderator assisted by a lay committee headed by George Simmons.

College Night

Call for Valley Students

High school students in the Hudson Valley area and their parents are invited to learn about college life at the seventh annual "College Night" to be held by Orange County Community College on Friday evening, November 1, at the OCCC campus, Middletown.

The 6:30 p.m. program will offer college-bound students and their families the opportunity to acquire details about the educational and career opportunities in any of 15 curriculum areas taught at OCCC.

A concert by the college's student band will open the College Night program at 6:30 p.m. in the Orange Hall auditorium. Academic Dean Robert Greenman and Charles Reilly, OCCC director of admissions-registrar, will welcome the guests at 7 p.m. and explain community college aims and objectives.

At 7:15 p.m. students and adults attending College Night may visit a y of 15 curriculum seminars to be located in various campus buildings. Each seminar will point out the general qualifications and interests a student will need to successfully complete such studies, and opportunities for additional education or employment in that field.

The 15 seminars will be repeated at 8:10 p.m. and again at 9 p.m. so each visitor will be able to investigate three fields of study during the program.

Seminars will be held in art; the biological sciences; business areas; correction administration; economics; government and history; secondary, elementary and special education; engineering, mathematics and physical science; English including journalism and speech; foreign language; medical laboratory technology; music; nursing; physical education, recreation and health; general and medical secretarial science; and electrical, mechanical and construction technologies.

The art world came alive for 43 students from art classes at Rondout Valley High School. These students, with art teachers Mrs. Jeanne Randall and Lee Schirmer, traveled to New York City recently to visit the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Guggenheim Museum.

Lively World of Art Becomes RV Reality

The students were awed by the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the largest Gothic cathedral in the world. Father Wilshire guided the group on a tour of the church and gave the students many interesting facts about the architecture and art work used in the Cathedral, a building that is expected to stand 5,000 years.

Next stop on the trip was the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where the group viewed the work of artists from thousands of years ago to the present day. Works seen included Egyptian, Roman, Greek, Medieval, Early American and Contemporary. A special exhibit of Italian frescoes was seen by some of the students.

The Guggenheim Museum had a special exhibit of Peruvian art. This included pottery, textiles and metalwork. Some contemporary works were also on display.

Trips, Dance On CYO Agenda

A visit to the Ulster Coffee House tonight is planned by St. Peter's Catholic Youth Organization which also has some other goodies up its sleeves.

A CYO convention is slated at Monticello and local members are planning to attend.

Also on the agenda is a dance slated Dec. 14. Details will be announced in the near future.

Last week the CYOers held a very successful dance at the school hall. Other fall events have included a hayride and a pre-Halloween party for dance decorations.

Bell Eminently Qualified

Residents of Ulster County can be certain of able representation in the New York State Assembly by the election of Attorney H. Clark Bell to the Assembly post. He is the Republican-Conservative candidate.

Bell's record as a delegate to the New York State Constitutional Convention was very impressive and he gives every promise of being a highly articulate legislator. He appears to have the ability and drive to distinguish himself as an assemblyman who will look after the interests of his constituents in Ulster County. As part of one of the fastest growing regions in the country, Ulster County needs the ablest available man to serve in Albany.

Bell bases his election appeal forthrightly on his experience and his credentials as a knowledgeable candidate to do the job.

Besides his service in the Constitutional Convention, in which he represented both Ulster and Dutchess Counties, Bell has been research counsel to the Joint Legislative Committee on Alcoholic Beverage Law, assistant legislative counsel to New York Select Bipartisan Committee on Off-Track Betting and legislative counsel to New York City Committee on the Waterfront Commission.

He is being opposed by Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Democratic candidate, who has been conducting an aggressive campaign. Dr. Gorman declares that he seeks the post specifically because he is a doctor and that over half of the state budget deals with public health matters in the fields of air and water pollution, narcotic addiction, health problems in the big-city ghetto areas, mounting problems in public welfare and Medicaid.

He also says that among the problems this county faces are dangerous roads, fouled waterways, unequal tax structure and inadequate water-sewer facilities. He stresses the need to retain, not take away, the people's school budgets and for industrial attractiveness to revitalize our area and raise our standard of living.

Dr. Gorman, who recently entered the political arena, is chairman of the Democratic Party of Ulster County.

We have every confidence in Attorney Bell's qualifications and capabilities and we believe he will fill the post with diligence and good service to the people. We are mindful that governmental decisions in Albany will be made now and the years ahead which will have direct and long-range impact on the area. A strong voice representing the view of local residents will tend to encourage government decisions responsive to Ulster's needs.

Having distinguished himself as a Constitutional Convention delegate receiving a citation for his vigorous leadership on state issues, we have every reason to believe that he will gain stature rapidly in the New York State Assembly.

There is no reason, in our opinion, to deprive Ulster County and the state of Attorney H. Clark Bell's services.

Brutal Murder

It is not often that capital crimes occur in our peaceful community and we know no effort will be spared by the police authorities to bring to justice the perpetrator of the brutal murder of Robert D. Gallo, who was clubbed and shot to death while hunting in the East Kingston area.

Expressing the profound sympathy of everyone is the following note from a saddened citizen:

"What a blow to our hearts to find a young man of Mr. Gallo's character taken from his family and community in such a brutal manner.

"What manner of person or persons could perform such a cruel and deliberate act?

"Let us hope he is not one living amongst us here. It would be unbelievable.

"In the meantime, please, hunters and outdoorsmen use caution, hunt with a companion until the madman is ferreted out.

"Our hearts are indeed broken and cannot accept such a horrible deed."

Until this murderer is caught, he is a threat to all of us which realization is moving authorities to extra efforts.

When apprehended, the slayer must be removed from society for life. It will not bring the victim back to life or ease the suffering of his family, but murderers cannot be permitted to run at large.

The resignation of Leonard Marks as director of the U.S. Information Agency, the third change in seven years at the head of U.S.I.A., was greeted by the Soviet press as a sign of the failure of U.S. propaganda abroad. If so, why doesn't the U.S.S.R. tear down the Berlin wall, dismiss its border guards around Russia and other Red-held countries?

David J. McDonald, former president of the United Steelworkers Union, is working for the election of Richard M. Nixon as President. "I have always voted for the man, not the party," McDonald said, in justification of a union leaders voting for a Republican. From all reports many in the rank and file feel as he does.

"Careful, That May Be Pointing at Me, Too!"

Henry J. Taylor Says GOP Congressional Problem

While Republican insiders find Richard M. Nixon doing fine in an amazing number of states, they are not finding the equivalent carry-through for co-running Congressional candidates.

This is the hidden and disturbing fly in the G.O.P. ointment at the moment.

The importance is twofold: first, the need for a Republican Congress in the event that George C. Wallace should somehow throw the election into the House; second, because an elected Nixon would be enormously aided by a Republican majority in Congress.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's first term identifies the problem at the Congressional level.

He won the Presidency by incomparably the largest vote that had ever been cast for any President, defeated Adlai E. Stevenson by the tremendous margin of 6.6 million and got 442 votes in the Electoral College. (The votes cast for his re-election were even larger, his margin over Mr. Stevenson the second time grew to 9.2 million and he got 457 electoral votes.)

Yet on the day General Eisenhower was inaugurated January 20, 1953 — the votes for co-running Congressional candidates had given his party only three more than a bare majority in the House and a majority of only one in the Senate. Actually, there was not one Republican Senator who had ever served with a Republican President, including Senator Robert A. Taft, and only 15 Republican Congressmen who ever had.

General Eisenhower got 82 electoral votes in seven states represented in the House by 57 Democrats, not one of whom was defeated. He won five so-called solid South states and polled there 49 per cent of the major party vote, outturning the Republican party vote by a phenomenal 28 1/2 per cent.

Nearly one-third more Southerners voted for the change at the Presidential level. Florida and Texas, for example gave the new Republican President not one Republican Congressman.

When Mr. Nixon ran in 1960 the Republicans had only 17 governorships and both houses of the legislature in only six states. But the 1964 Republican victory was a victory in depth. Today the G.O.P. has more than half the governorships: 26. These represent states with 58 per cent of the nation's population and 302 Electoral College votes (only 270 are needed to elect Mr. Nixon President). The Republicans gained three Senate seats, 47 House seats and 10 governorships.

In all this Mr. Nixon helped mightily. A full 55 of the 82 Congressmen Mr. Nixon campaigned for in 1966 were elected, along with 10 of 13 Senators and 10 to 12 governors.

But that's the 1968 rub. Republican insiders are confident of a November gain of at least five more G.O.P. governorships. They foresee these in Democratic-split Indiana; Illinois, where a strong Republican opposes new Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro; Iowa, Vermont and New Hampshire, where popular Democratic governors have stepped aside.

They see possible victory in four more: Republican Rep. Arch A. Moore's West Virginia gubernatorial race, and equally favored candidates' runs in Delaware, Kansas and North Dakota. Moreover, as for holding present G.O.P. governorships, the Republican insiders are confident in four states which have appeared tough for the G.O.P. to hold: Arkansas, Montana, Washington and Wisconsin.

Mr. Nixon's warning within the party against "the Republican's almost cannibalistic urge to destroy and consume one another when they disagree" has been taken to heart by Republican leaders this time.

But in the House races the root problem is quite different. Lifting the veil somewhat, several party informants have issued careful analyses. For example, Mr. I. Lee Potter, executive director of the Republican Convention Committee, listed on Oct. 10 such specifics as the estimated gain of four Virginia Congressman and Minority Leader Gerald Ford has since tried to be similarly specific.

Behind the scenes, however, the G.O.P. problem at the Congressional level is that the 1966 election swept out so many marginal, or "soft," Democratic seats among the 47 that the Republicans won that a disproportionate number of those remaining to be won in 1968 are well-entrenched and hardly assailable.

Beyond this hidden problem, political history offers much to support the cautious belief that chickens should not be counted before they are hatched, just as it also warns about promising two chickens in every pot.

Rift Is Widening Between Red China and North Vietnam

By LEON DENNEN
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) — A new rift between Mao Tse-tung and Ho Chi Minh?

Relations between Red China and North Vietnam, which have been strained for some time, seem to have deteriorated even further since Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Peking's Premier Chou En-lai is even reported to have warned Ho Chi Minh against his anti-Chinese policy and servile relations with Moscow. In the view of Communist diplomats, this may be one of the reasons for the slightly "softer" line of North Vietnam's negotiators at the Paris peace talks.

With the Russians preoccupied in Eastern Europe and their vast border with Red China, the North Vietnamese may well fear they will be left to face the United States alone.

In the past few months, Hanoi's ruling politburo has been shifting toward positions closer to Moscow and openly ignoring the Chinese. This was especially evident in Ho Chi Minh's decision to back Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia despite Peking's sharply negative line.

In retaliation, the Chinese informed Hanoi that they will discontinue economic and military aid to Hanoi. They also threatened to withdraw their technicians and volunteers — believed to be numbering 70,000 — from North Vietnam.

Mao, like President Johnson, West Germany Chancellor Kiesinger and even French President De Gaulle, is obviously concerned over Russia's renewed imperialist adventures.

For the Chinese Marxist-Leninists, who have no illusions about the men who rule in Moscow, this presents a special threat. They see a grave and immediate danger in the Kremlin's "new theory" that Russia is entitled to reimpose arbitrary discipline upon any Communist country which, in their view, also includes Red China as well as Romania, Yugoslavia and Albania.

This was emphasized in a recent speech by Chou in which he underscored that the "Czechoslovak incident is by no means an isolated one."

Although the speech was given no more than routine attention in the Western press, it was one of the most bitter attacks ever delivered by a top Chinese leader against Russia.

Equally blunt in its condemnation of the Soviet "fascists" was the statement of Begir Balluku, defense minister of Albania, Red China's staunchest ally in East Europe.

Speaking at a farewell banquet in Peking on Oct. 6, Balluku warned that China and Albania will fight if the "Russian revisionists and their lackeys" dared to "touch" another Communist country.

To the loud cheers of China's high-ranking military men and politicians, including Chou, he said that Russia "will certainly meet with the immediate fatal and destructive return blows by the armies" of China and Albania.

There is little doubt that the Chinese are genuinely alarmed about a possible invasion of Romania, Yugoslavia and Albania by Russia's armed forces.

The irony of it is that they should also include Yugoslavia under their protective umbrella. Mao has long been at odds with Yugoslavia President Tito, whom he regards as a "revisionist" and Communist heretic.

But the Chinese seem convinced that a Soviet occupation of Romania would inevitably increase the danger of aggression against Yugoslavia and thus constitute a certain threat for China's ally, Albania.

For nobody, of course, can be under any delusion that Moscow would spare pro-Chinese Albania after resistance.

Any attack on Romania and Yugoslavia would therefore be regarded by Peking as a serious blow to its vital political and strategic interests.

Drew Pearson Says Nixon Ready With Strategy For the Election Deadlock

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon, looking ahead to the possibility of a three-way division of the votes on November 5 may throw the election into the House of Representatives, has worked out his post-election strategy with his usual thoroughness.

It would cause a bad public reaction, he feels, if he made any deal with the extremist candidate George Wallace. Some aides have suggested that he bypass Wallace and make a direct appeal to all electors, who are not bound by law to vote for the candidate to whom they are pledged. These aides have urged that Nixon use his ambassador to the South, Sen. Strom Thurmond, to dicker with the Wallace electors.

However, the Republican candidate has also rejected this proposal. Any backstage bartering of the presidency, he believes, would be resented by the voters. Therefore he has decided to make an appeal to the House delegations to cast their vote strictly according to the popular vote in each state if electors give no one a majority.

If the election should wind up in the House, the Constitution allows each state one vote. There is an excellent chance that Nixon will win a majority of states in the popular vote but that the Democrat-dominated House delegations could give Hubert Humphrey a majority.

Nixon intends to appeal to the House delegations to lay aside politics and cast each state's vote for the candidate who won that state's popular vote. Since Nixon is expected to win the popular vote in most states, particularly the Rocky Mountain States, this less populous Midwestern and solution would almost certainly give him the victory.

Note: If Nixon is upset over the foot-in-mouth troubles of his running mate Spiro Agnew, the GOP candidate has given no hint of it to Agnew. Not once has Nixon complained to his running mate, even by implication, over the way he is running his end of the campaign.

Surprisingly no tension at all has disrupted the Nixon-Agnew relationship.

The Senate's most indefatigable junketeer, 78-year-old Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., has taken off for Russia and points east after firing a party broadside at this column.

Our report that the taxpayers had subsidized his amateur movies, he said, was "totally false." The Senator likes to record his overseas adventures on film, and he lugs his trustworthy Bell and Howell wherever he wanders around the world. We had reported that the taxpayers had been stuck with the bill for his movie-making.

It now appears that we owe Sen. Ellender an apology or, to be precise, one-fifth of an apology. He reimbursed the Senate Recording Studio, but he has the checks to prove it. Although this is information both his office and the Senate studio refused to furnish when we first asked for the facts, we are now happy to set the record straight.

The taxpayers, however, cannot take too much comfort; they are still stuck with paying the overhead. Not only do they provide the facilities and furnish the equipment at the Senate Recording Studio, but they also pay all of the salaries.

Insiders claim that Senators can get their film work done at the Senate for one-fifth what a commercial studio would charge them. This is strictly an estimate because it is impossible to get the actual figures out of anyone in the Senate.

Charlie Jones, who runs the Senate Recording Studio, explained simply: "This is the Senators' business."

We suggested it was also the taxpayers' business. He acknowledged that his salary was paid by the taxpayers, but he refused to divulge even how much he is paid. All information, he said, would have to come from the Senate Rules Committee.

Mum's the Word
At the Rules Committee we were referred to Mrs. Marian Moore, who said that only the Sergeant-at-Arms could release the information. Sergeant-at-Arms Robert Dunphy insisted he couldn't talk and referred us back to the Rules Committee.

As for Ellender's hobby of filming amateur travelogues, the Senate recording studio used to process all his films. Then he decided to turn his films into major productions, complete with editing, splicing and a narration in his own voice. It was more than the Senate Studio could handle.

As a Senate Agriculture chairman, Ellender was aware that the Agriculture Department had to set up a miniature Hollywood which handles movie-making for most of the federal agencies. He soon put them to processing his home movies.

The Agriculture Department is anxious to please and placate the Senate Agriculture chairman, but there were personal work for individuals. The Department got around this by billing the Senate Recording Studio, which in turn collected from Ellender.

"This is an entirely normal undertaking," insisted Ellender.

It may be normal for the Senate Agriculture chairman — but no other individual has ever been able to arrange with the Agriculture Department for its motion picture professionals to edit and process personal films.

Meanwhile Ellender is back on the sightseeing circuit, his Bell and Howell at the ready. Before his departure he purchased 200 film packs through the government — at the one-third government discount. He reimbursed the government, however, out of his own pocket. It should also be reported in fairness that Ellender has made the travelogues available to schools in his native Louisiana.

These are the full facts, as far as we have been able to dig them out, on Allen Ellender and his amateur movies.

N. Y. Democrats Desperately Need Victory in Nov. Elections

By CHARLES DUMAS
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The New York Democratic party desperately needs a victory in next month's elections to retrieve itself from the brink of disaster.

Wracked by internal warfare, pitifully short of money and lacking a strong leader to rally around, the so-called regular Democratic organization is approaching Nov. 5 with sweaty palms.

If Republican Richard M. Nixon should beat Democrat Hubert Humphrey in the presidential balloting — Nixon seems to be leading in this state — and if Republican U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits should whip Democrat Paul O'Dwyer, as most people expect, then nearly all would be lost for the Democrats.

The last straw would be loss of Democratic majority control of the State Assembly, the only power base and major patronage source that the party still commands. The GOP could take over if Nixon provided enough coattail lift.

That would leave the Democratic party about as far out in the cold as any major party has been in this state in modern times.

Apart from its normal ration of seats in Congress, the Democrats would have only one really significant office, that of State Comptroller Arthur Levitt, who is not involved in the current election.

More important, the party would be cut off from any substantial patronage — the jobs that retain the faithful in line and help produce the bread-and-butter contributions that keep the wolf from the door.

As it stands now, the party is at its lowest ebb of political fortune in many years.

In the 1954 election, Democrat Averell Harriman captured the governorship and Levitt the state comptroller's office. Democrat Robert F. Wagner reigned as Mayor of New York City and Herbert H. Lehman was a Democratic titan in the U.S. Senate.

The Democrats had power, patronage and prestige leaders to spare. But erosion soon set in.

In 1956, ill health forced Lehman into retirement, and Republican Jacob K. Javits beat Wagner for the Senate job.

In 1958, Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller ousted Harriman from the governor's chair. In 1965, Republican John V. Lindsay won the New York City mayoralty.

Brief Resurgence
There was a brief Democratic resurgence, in 1964, when Robert F. Kennedy took away Republican Kenneth B. Keating's Senate seat and Democrats rode the Johnson landslide into majority control of both houses of the Legislature.

But Republicans recaptured the State Senate the following year. The assassination of Kennedy last June enabled Rockefeller to install a Republican, Charles E. Goodell, in the U.S. Senate post.

Democrats urgently need a Humphrey victory to stem the slide into ruin. The support of a Democratic president, dispensing federal patronage, could stabilize things.

An O'Dwyer victory would restore a measure of prestige, but O'Dwyer seems determined to remodel the party along more liberal lines, not to the liking of the regulars. Any victory would be better than none, however.

Meanwhile, fearing the worst, some party leaders are looking hopefully to former U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, chairman of the Humphrey campaign in this state, as a possible future savior.

Whether Goldberg would want to try to pick up the pieces of a Nov. 5 disaster remains to be seen.

1 Main Street
Ellenville, N. Y.
Oct. 22, 1968

Editor, The Freeman:

Being an attorney who has practiced the profession of law for almost half a century, I am becoming increasingly filled with wonderment as to why the army of friends and well-wishers of Hon. Milton Levine, of Monticello, our Sullivan County neighbor, and candidate for the office of Justice of the Supreme Court of this Judicial District, have thus far failed to set forth in this political campaign one of the finest qualifications of Mr. Levine for the Supreme Court bench. We cannot expect him to personally bring out this point, (he is a modest man as becomes a candidate for the Supreme Court), and so we his friends and neighbors owe it to the voting public not to let said voting public forget the following concerning Mr. Levine.

As often becomes the lot of modest men, oftentimes their closest associates overlook some fine qualification that the candidate possesses. Folks have a provocative way of forgetting that the prime qualification for a judge is not merely that he understand the law — he is furnished with a law clerk who, under the judge's able guidance, can help take care of this. It is becoming ever more the fact that the greatest qualification required by a Justice of the Supreme Court is that he understand lawyers, a sense of understanding that in the case of Mr. Levine is just plain natural.

In our time, with justice very much delayed by delay in trials, the vital conferences before trial between the judge and the lawyers for both sides produces settlement of law suits. When the judge understands lawyers and not just the law — and lest we forget, each time a case is settled, just that much more of the judge's time is saved for the "next case."

Hence let the forgoing be stressed in his favor, so far evidently neglected, so that on election day he can attain the post where a very keen understanding of lawyers can do the most good — on the Supreme Court bench of this, our Judicial District.

Yours truly,

MANUEL DITTENHEIMER

Deputies Probe UCCC Robbery

By SHANE CROSBY

Ulster County Sheriff's deputies were kept active last night as they probed a robbery of a woman's billfold containing more than $100, and the crash of a truck that had been stolen from a Kingston service station.

An instructor at Ulster County Community College reported to deputies about 5:15 p. m. that a billfold from her purse was taken from a service station containing more than $100.

The instructor, Virginia Meier, said it was found later Friday in a ladies' room on the UCCC Stone Ridge campus, and several shrubs, according to deputies said it contained papers that were in it when taken but that the money was gone.

A house at 73 Robins Road in the Town of Ulster was entered during the night according to deputies' reports. The house, owned by Edward Toder, was entered by a rear window, with public intoxication.

Local Death Record

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Robert Adams, of Riverton, N.J., Mrs. Valmore Carpenter, of West Camp, Mrs. Joseph Sweeney, of Saugerties, and Miss Evelyn Neher of New York City; a son Oswald Neher of West Camp, eight grandchildren, and 17 great grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at the Hartley and Lamoree Inc., Funeral Home, Main and Second Streets, Saugerties, on Monday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Mts. View Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home anytime after 7 p. m. today.

Poughkeepsie Auto Mishap Fatal to Man

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP)—Carl Schnell, 60, of Elizaville, died Friday night two hours after his car collided head-on with another automobile on Parker Avenue at the New Haven Railroad overpass, police said.

The driver of the second car was not treated. Police said Schnell was injured shortly before 8 p. m. and was taken to St. Francis Hospital where he died. The accident was under investigation.

Dutchess Death Ruled a Suicide

An 80-year-old Hyde Park man took his own life Friday evening between 6:15 and 6:50 and was discovered slumped over a bathtub in his daughter's home with his wrists slashed.

Peter Pluss, of River Road in the Dutchess County community, was found dead by his daughter, Margaret Meyer, at 6:50 p. m. some 40 minutes after he said he was going to take a bath.

Cause of death was given as loss of blood from self-inflicted wounds. Troopers said he apparently used a razor to slash his wrists.

Olive Trash Collection Set

The Town of Olive in cooperation with the Tongore Garden Club will hold a trash collection day Monday. Residents are asked to place trash bundles on the side of town roads for the collection that will be carried out all day.

Masked Man Leaves Market Emptyhanded

A masked bandit attempted a robbery at a supermarket in Hopewell Junction last night but was turned out by employees who told him they did not know the combination to the store's safe.

The man, said to be armed with a .22 pistol, entered the Grand Union on Route 376 in the hamlet about 9:50 p. m. Friday. State police said two employees were the only persons in the store and they were not harmed by the man.

Described as a white male about six-foot tall and weighing between 160 and 185, he was said to have a stocking over his face.

Woodstock Schedules Hearing Nov. 8 on Proposed '69 Budget

WOODSTOCK—A $11,860 increase in the police budget, a $15,900 item for maintenance of the new town dump and salary increases highlight the proposed 1969 budget for the Town of Woodstock.

A public hearing scheduled for Friday, Nov. 8 at 8 p. m., will consider the $310,103.28 gross budget, up $38,660.17 over 1968 figures.

The proposed police appropriation is $30,000, an increase of $11,500 over the 1968 total of $18,500. The total police figure is $32,500, with a $2,500 item for contract and expenses. In 1968 it was $21,640, with $18,500 for salaries, $2,100 for equipment and $1,040 for contract and expenses.

Supervisor Milton Houst said the town hopes to add at least one more full time constable to insure 24-hour police coverage for the township.

At the present time there are two full-time constables, Chief William Waterous and Paul Senecal. Thirteen part-time constables are currently available but no more than eight are seeing part-time duty. Chief Waterous said.

Salary increases proposed in the budget: $100 raises for each councilman, from $600 to $700 annually; $500 increases for each Town Justice, from $2,700 to $3,200 each.

Salary of the superintendent of highways is fixed at $7,000, an increase of $400 over 1968.

Salaries and expenses for the town supervisor and town clerk remain the same, the supervisor to receive $4,500 salary and $700 expenses; the town clerk, $5,200 in salary and $1,075 in expenses.

No increases are projected for the combined salaries of three assessors at $6,400. The $15,900 appropriation for maintenance of the first town-owned dump after Jan. 1, 1969, is based on projections by the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios, according to Supervisor Houst.

"That is a variable figure," said the supervisor. "If the towns of Shandaken and Saugerties use the facilities, the cost to the township will be reduced."

Salaries for planning board members are earmarked at $1,960 an increase from $1,200. The library appropriation is increased from $1,500 to $2,000. An item of $2,000 is proposed for legal fees and the salary and expenses of the building inspector remain the same at $2,600.

Principal items to be raised by taxation include $135,701.25 gross and $84,905.05 net in the general fund. Estimated revenues are $50,796.20. Repairs and improvements amount to $69,406 gross and $61,683 net with anticipated revenues of $7,717; bridges, $4,000; machinery, $24,975; snow removal and miscellaneous, $15,200. The public hearing on Nov. 8 is open to all taxpayers in the township, who may ask questions about any item in the budget.

Ulster Businessmen Opposed To Proposed Zoning Ordinance

The first organized opposition to the proposed zoning ordinance in the Town of Ulster was announced this week by Ulster Businessmen's Association.

At its recent meeting the organization unanimously approved a resolution to go on record opposing the proposed zoning ordinance for the Town of Ulster.

The announcement stated that the town has developed its identity as a progressive community conducive to both commercial and industrial development as well as private residences, and the town should be allowed to continue this development without the restrictions of a proposed zoning ordinance.

The Town of Ulster Zoning Commission is currently reviewing recommendations and revisions in the proposed ordinance prior to presentation of the complete draft to the Town Board. When the completed draft is ready the Town Board may call for a public hearing on the zoning proposal prior to making its final decision.

Three informational meetings in various parts of the township were held and many recommendations were offered to the commission. At many of these meetings it appeared that zoning would be unpopular, it was reported at a recent Town Board meeting.

Late in September the Town of Ulster Democratic Social Club by resolution called for the swift enactment of the zoning ordinance. At that time it was announced that the club approved the ordinance because it would greatly benefit the township, attract industry, protect property values and help preserve the rural attractiveness of the area.

Under the proposal the township would be zoned into seven districts. A zoning map is on display at the office of Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz in the Post Office Building on Vincent Street. Mrs. Doris Mulvin is chairman of the town's Zoning Commission.

Pole, Hydrant Hit in Crash

Two one-car accidents investigated by Kingston police early this morning resulted in a downed fire hydrant and a severed New York Telephone Company pole.

The pole, located near the corner of Washington and Lucas Avenues, was struck by a car operated by Wayne A. Passer, 21, of Wilber Avenue, Kingston. Passer told police he was traveling on Washington when his car swerved to the right side of the avenue and hit the pole.

The hydrant was struck at the corner of Foxhall and Gage by a car operated by Donald F. Shisley, 33, of Saugerties. He claimed he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car and veered into the hydrant. The hydrant was pushed about a foot by the impact of the crash.

No injuries were reported to police.

DeGaulle in Talks Today With Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Seeking to build French influence in the Middle East, President Charles de Gaulle begins talks today with President Cevdet Sunay.

The 77-year-old French chief of state, who arrived Friday for a five-day state visit, urged this key nation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to join France in breaking ties with power blocs that "divide Europe."

"In a world situation as it is now changing, the respective situations of Turkey and France offer them the best reason to bring their policies together," De Gaulle said at a dinner Friday night.

Earlier he told an airport crowd that "understanding Turkey's wish for independence and importance in a key area of the world, we are ready to bring our policy closer to Turkey."

The two statements were seen as evidence of the independent role De Gaulle has been trying to steer with the Moslem countries of the Middle East since the Arab-Israeli war on June 1967. They coincide with rising anti-Americanism in Turkey, although the government remains pro-United States and pro-NATO.

Many Turks are disappointed by what they consider the favoring of Greece by the United States in the drawnout Greek-Turkish dispute over Cyprus.

De Gaulle had planned to try to convince the Turks to follow France's lead and leave the military command of NATO, but informants said he changed his mind after the invasion of Czechoslovakia and the Soviet fleet buildup in the Mediterranean.

The passage of Soviet ships through Turkish straits to the Mediterranean in recent months has underscored the country's strategic importance.

Miss Caslavka Wins Fourth

U. S. Rips Yugoslavia, 65-50, for Gold Medal

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — America's pick-up basketball team, shunned by many of the top collegiate stars but molded into a precision outfit by Coach Henry Iba, brought the United States its 40th gold medal of the Olympic Games.

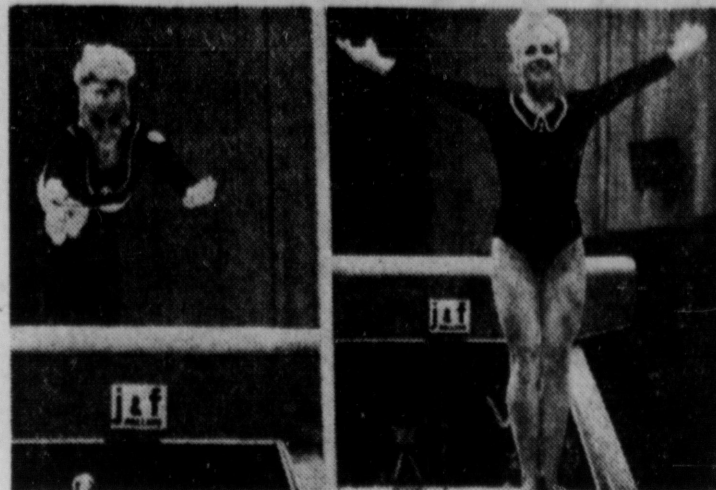

The Americans, never beaten in Olympic basketball competition, whipped Yugoslavia 65-50 Friday night, extending their unbeaten Olympic string to 75 games.

Sleeping giant Russia awoke and grabbed a double fistful of medals, 16 in all, and per Vera Caslavka of Czechoslovakia became the darling of the Games as she picked up three more gold medals in gymnastics for a total of four.

Russia's huge haul of medals, including five gold, pushed their total to 69, 27 of them gold. They're assured of at least six more medals today—the last full day of competition in these 19th Games—and also should collect another flock in men's gymnastics and Greco-Roman wrestling.

But the move may be too late. The United States, out-scored by Russia in total medals in every Olympics since 1952 now has 99 medals and should add to that in the final three swimming events, which the Americans have dominated.

Claudia Kolb, Santa Clara, Calif., took the women's 400-meter individual medley by 40 meters in Olympic record time of 5:08.5, and Lillian "pokey" Watson, a UCLA freshman, took the women's 200-meter backstroke in 2:24.8, also an Olympic record.

They represented the 19th and 20th golds collected by the swimming and diving team—but the day belonged to the basketball team.

They trailed several times during the first half and led only 32-29 at halftime, but Jo Jo White and Spencer Haywood scored 26 points in 12 minutes of the second half Haywood finished with 23 points and White with 14.

"We knew we were not expected to win," said Haywood, a doubtful starter because of a case of diarrhea. "We knew we were a downgraded team and this made us want to prove something to ourselves."

Russia, silver medalists in the four previous games, settled for the bronze medal, beating Brazil 70-53.

Miss Caslavka, a 26-year-old blonde, captured the imagination of the Mexican fans with her graceful, athletic, near-perfect performances in women's gymnastics.

She had taken the women's all-around title Wednesday, and Friday won vault horse and uneven parallel bars competition, and tied for first with Larissa Petrik of Russia in floor exercises.

Miss Caslavka, who is to be married today to Josef Odlovil, a Czech 1,500-meter runner, also won the silver medal in the balance beam competition, being edged out by Natalia Kuchinskaya of Russia, 19.650 to 19.575.

The Russians also picked up two gold medals, and a total of six, in canoeing, and Ivan Izimov, riding Ijor, won the individual dressage.

Defending champion Ludmila Pinaeva won the women's 500-meter kayak singles in 2:11.09, and Alexander Shaparenko and Vladimir Morozov took the men's double kayaks, finishing the 1,000 meters in 3:37.54.

Hungary dominated the canoeing competition with two gold, three silver and one bronze. The United States was blanked.

Miss Kolb, 18, winner of two gold medals, announced her retirement from competitive swimming after accepting the gold medal for the 400-meter individual medley.

"No, I'm not bored with swimming," she said. "But I've been training for 12 years and I think it is time to try something else."

PKEY WATSON

"I think Lynn Vidali will make a fine successor if she stays with it."

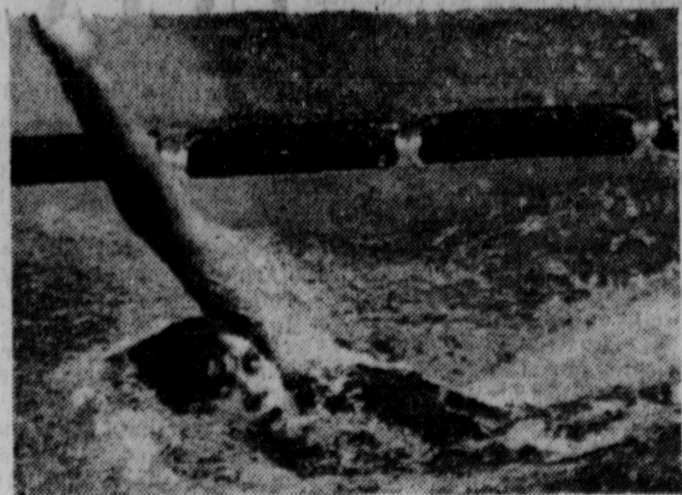

Miss Valdi, 16-year-old San Francisco high school student, was second in 5:22, followed by Sabine Steinbach of East Germany.

"I really didn't think I could beat Claudia," Miss Vidali said. "But I'm happy to win the silver medal. Maybe someday I can be number one."

Miss Watson, who said, "I definitely will keep swimming while I'm in school, but I don't know if I will swim seriously," edged Canada's Elaine Tanner.

Kay Hall, Tacoma, Wash., was third. It was Miss Hall's third medal. She has two golds.

Roland Mathes of East Germany broke the American domination, winning the men's 200-meter backstroke in Olympic record time of 2:09.6, 1 1/2 meters in front of Mitchell Ivey, Santa Clara, Wash., third.

One more bizarre incident was added to the long list of controversies, this time in Greco-Roman wrestling.

A Bulgarian, Hristo Traikov, who scored a clean win over American bantamweight David Hazewinkel of Coon Rapids, Minn., was disqualified when it was discovered he was sniffing smelling salts in a towel during the elimination bout.

"You know it is not allowed to eat, drink or even breathe during these games," said international wrestling doctor Per Stromback of Sweden. "The Bulgarian breathed smelling salts from his towel. We had to throw him out."

NFA Takes Title

BEAR MOUNTAIN — Middletown High School harriers Bill Bright and Kevin Barringer romped to a 1-2 finish here Friday afternoon, but the squad from Newburgh Free Academy closed out strongly down the middle to win the DUSO cross country championship, last year's champion Kingston High School, finished second.

In village DUSO meet run over the same course at the same time, Port Jervis won handily posting a 22 point margin over second place Monticello.

The Goldbacks, sparked by the 3-4-5 finish of Rozelle Hawkins, Gerald Hanlon and Gordon Taylor, closed out their scoring when Ron Kaiser placed 21st overall for a 41 point total in the city standings.

Kingston finished with 58 points, Middletown with 63, and Port Jervis and Monticello, competing in both meets, had 71 and 111 points respectively.

In the village meet, Port ran away with the team title, despite the fine first place finish of Ellenville's Tommy Mansell.

Mansell, who would have finished fifth among the city school harriers won the village meet over Monticello's Dan Barber.

Lourdes Wins DCSL Title

ARLINGTON—Our Lady of Lourdes from Poughkeepsie took the Dutchess County Scholastic League cross-country championship here yesterday by placing two runners in the top five to nose out defending champions, Wappingers Falls, 37-53.

Chris Williams, a sophomore from Wappingers, was a photo finish winner, surprising everyone by edging out the favorite Paul Cresack of Lourdes. Both finished in a time of 13:37 on the 2.5-mile course.

Arlington, with 71 points, squeaked into a third place finish ahead of Saugerties (73) although it was the finest placing the Sawyers have had in their DCSL history. Poughkeepsie took up fifth position with 122 points, Roosevelt came in sixth at 139 and Beacon took up the tail end of the meet with 228 points.

Dave Nelsen of Lourdes finished a distant third in 14:00.

Onteora Harriers Nip Rondout 27-30

ONTEORA — The Onteora high cross country team squeezed by Rondout Valley 27-30 here yesterday for their first UCAL victory against four defeats, although Rondout's Lopiano brothers Pat and Jim, ran away with the first and second places in 12:10 and 12:15 times respectively.

The three week delay from the austerity budget innovation at Onteora in the beginning of the year.

Monday, Oct. 30 the UCAL championship meet will be held with Pine Bush the favorite, but after the fine performances of both teams here anything could happen.

NFL Roundup

Morrall Will Start Against LA

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Baltimore Colts better be up to par Sunday because the foursome they will be meeting is noted for teeing off on passers, runners and anyone else who happens by.

The foursome called fearsome is the Los Angeles Rams' line of Lamar Lundy, Roger Brown, Merlin Olsen and Deacon Jones, the keystone of the National Football League's leading defense.

First Loss
Baltimore's first loss in six games, 30-20 to Cleveland last Sunday, "was not the result of any specific breakdown, but simply a below par game for everybody," Colts Coach Don Shula said.

Another such performance could be disastrous for the Colts because a loss would drop them two games behind the unbeaten Rams in the Coastal Division at the season's halfway point.

Another key game will be Monday night's nationally televised scrap in the Cotton Bowl between the struggling Green Bay Packers, 2-3-1 and the high-riding Dallas Cowboys, 6-0.

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, San Francisco, 3-3, is at Detroit, 3-2-1; Minnesota, 3-3, at Chicago, 2-4; New Orleans, 2-3, at St. Louis, 3-3; Atlanta, 1-5, at Cleveland, 3-3; the New York Giants, 4-2, at Washington, 3-3, and Philadelphia, 0-6, at Pittsburgh, 0-6.

Morrall Will Start
Earl Morrall once again will start for Baltimore in place of Johnny Unitas, who is recuperating from a torn muscle in his right elbow and who has had trouble passing in practice this week.

Unitas started the second half against Cleveland last Sunday but completed only one of 11 passes and had three interceptions.

Lundy and running backs Dick Bass and Tommy Mason, out last week with minor injuries, are expected to return to action for Los Angeles. Roman Gabriel had a big passing day and Willie Ellison ran for 69 yards against Atlanta, but once again the Rams will be counting heavily on the defense.

Green Bay will be facing the NFL's leading offense and second-best defense as the Packers try to get untracked and also continue their hold over Dallas, which has seen them beat the Cowboys in their last three regular-season meetings and in the last two league championships.

Bart Starr, who has seen only brief service in the last two games, is expected to start at quarterback for the Packers.

Detroit, which leads Minnesota by one-half game and Green Bay by a full game in the Central Division, once again will count on the passing of Bill Munson and the running of Mel Farr, the NFL's top rusher, to get by steadily improvig San Francisco. The 49ers move on the passing combination of John Brodie to Clifton McNeil.

Minnesota, which came up with a fine defensive effort although losing 20-7 to Dallas, will try to get its offense moving against Chicago, a club with a leaky defense and an offense hurt by quarterback problems.

The three-way first-place tie in the Century Division among New Orleans, St. Louis and Cleveland should be reduced to at least a two-way tie.

Cardinals Walk
St. Louis, which beat New Orleans 21-20 earlier in the season, suddenly has come up with a potent ground attack, which is led by Willis Crenshaw. New Orleans' most consistent offensive weapon is the field goal kicking of Charlie Durkee who has hit 11 of 19 attempts.

Cleveland should have momentum after upsetting Baltimore, but the Browns won't be able to take Atlanta lightly. The Falcons led Los Angeles 14-0 before losing 27-14. Cleveland's Leroy Kelly appears to be on the move and is second in the league in rushing.

The Giants, two games behind Capitol Division-leading Dallas after losing their last two contests, will have the usual problem of any team that plays Washington—stop Sonny Jurgensen. New York did it well enough to win the first encounter of the two teams this season.

"AS DO FEW MOVIES, 'THE SWIMMER' STAYS IN THE MEMORY LIKE AN ECHO THAT NEVER QUITE DISAPPEARS. I HAPPEN TO LIKE IT VERY MUCH! I like the way he's for having liked it, and I like Burt Lancaster for having wanted to do it. The film, which was photographed mostly in and around Westport, Conn., has the look and smell of authentic suburbia. The film has the shape — Vincent Canby, N. Y. Times — of AN OPEN-ENDED HALLUCINATION. It is a GRIM, DISTURBING AND SOMETIMES FUNNY VIEW of a very small, very special segment of upper-middle class American life."

Dear Abby

Marriage Is a Daily Job

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Al and I have been married for 16 years, if you can call this a marriage. Al says that marriage is a job, like any other job, and since everybody gets at least one day a week off from his job, a man should get a day off from his marriage, so Al works at our marriage 6 days a week, but he takes Sundays off.

He leaves the house late Saturday night, and I don't see him again until early Monday morning. He puts about 200 miles on his car and I don't have the slightest idea where he's been. This doesn't make much sense to me, but I can't talk him out of it. Is he crazy, or am I?

AL'S BETTY
DEAR BETTY: Marriage is a 7-day-a-week job, and there's no time off for good (or "bad") behavior. Al is far from "crazy," if he's able to sell this deal, but I'm not so sure about you, if you're buying it.

DEAR ABBY: Because so many service men read your column, I hope you'll print this. We realize that most men in the service don't have time to write letters, but if they are well, they can take 5 minutes to write two words, "I'M FINE" and then sign it.

My brother has been in Vietnam for 5 months. Our whole family writes to him regularly but he's written only three times. My poor mother refuses to leave the house until the mail comes, and I've seen her age 10 years in 5 months! The first we heard from him in 5 weeks was yesterday. He said he was fine. He could have said that 5 weeks ago!

DISGUSTED WITH BROTHER
DEAR DISGUSTED: A man who is in the service could conceivably have many legitimate reasons for not writing. He could be on the move and unable to write. Also mail is not always delivered without a hitch from the war zone. Some can't write for security reasons. But how about children who are just away from home and don't write either! Sharper than a serpent's tooth.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter who is 16 says that when a girl brings her boyfriend in after a date, the parents should be in bed.
Brenda came home at 11:30 last night after a movie date and she found me in the kitchen baking cookies for a church bake sale which was to take place the next day. She looked at me like I had no business being there and shouted, "Mother, what are you doing up? Go to bed!" I would like your opinion as I was very hurt and upset over this.

HURT MOM
DEAR HURT: If your 16-year-old daughter can tell you where you should be—and get away with it—you have my sympathy. Children do not become disrespectful and insolent over night. It's not possible for me to accomplish in one letter what you apparently have failed to do in 16 years. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: So the "rich relatives" placed their name-address sticker on another signature and sent the Christmas card out again!
A card so beautiful as to merit double-duty deserves more. The folks who received the second-hand card should have covered the sticker with their own, and sent it back for triple duty.

UNCLE JOE
Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Oswald and James Jacoby
The Egyptians outbid Alvin Roth and Bill Root of the United States team on this hand from the Olympiad. At least, East and West can make either three spades or three diamonds if declarer decides to play North for the king-queen-small of diamonds.

However, it is doubtful if many players would go to the three-level vulnerable with the East-West cards. Certainly the Egyptian East-West pair let Edgar Kaplan play three clubs at the other table.
The defense at both tables started with the jack-queen and ace of diamonds. Three rounds of spades followed with the Egyptian ruffing with the four spot. Then the Egyptian declarer played his ace of clubs and Roth dropped the queen.

What would you do if you were South? Probably just what the unfortunate Egyptian did. He wanted to get to dummy twice to finesse hearts twice. He could do this safely by playing the jack of clubs and then a club to the king but then he would have to give up trump control for his second entry to dummy.

It looked so easy to lead a low club and stick in dummy's nine. He did just that and Roth made his 10 spot.

Edgar Kaplan had no such problem at the other table. When he led the ace of clubs East dropped the 10 and Edgar decided to play the clubs to divide two-two.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1968

ARIES (March 21-April 19): One who cajoles, demands is trying to have you live up to potential. Know this — control temper. Realize that challenge can be inspiration. Accept extra assignment — you can do it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect today coincides with chance to enlarge base of operations. Don't accept status quo. Look beyond immediate indications. Emphasis on travel, communication from afar.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress vital approach. Be independent, original. Work methods improve. You get more with less effort. Key is to ride with tide. More in your corner than may be realized. Go ahead.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your hunch pays off. Have confidence in feeling, sense of direction. You're on right track. There is pressure. But you can successfully meet challenge. Key is patience, persistence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Key is to detect trends, indications. Take nothing for granted. Subtle forces appear to be at work. You can gain if observant. Don't force issues. What you need comes to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal magnetism draws unusual people. Investigate — find reasons. Youngster in difficulty could consult you. Don't cast first stone. Sense of perception is highlighted. Dig deep.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Change and variety, plus travel are featured. You want to break from routine. But there remains a basic responsibility. Solve dilemma through mature approach. This is done with aid of family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Study LIBRA message. don't alienate yourself from loved ones. Family harmony can be restored. Make gesture which is meaningful. Accent on home, security, feeling that you belong.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Solid thrust forward is indicated. Progress may appear slow, but it is steady. Utilize past experience. Lesson learned can now be profitably applied. Review, check. You're right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What was dubious now becomes crystal clear. Have confidence. Inquires result in constructive answers. You get co-operation from previously stubborn sources. Know this — act accordingly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diplomatic methods accomplish goal. What is required is obtainable. Key is to be versatile. Try various methods. Refuse to be wedded to past. Work with material at hand — but in a unique way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Hidden matters dominate. What you seek is undercover. Be subtle. Don't wear heart on sleeve. Some today are secretive. You have to be persistent for results. Sense of humor also helps.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are concerned with helping people. This attracts you to medicine, law. Recent emotional setback is on the mend. You get stronger.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for AQUARIUS. Special word to LEO: conciliatory gesture marks day. (To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet "Secret Hints for Men and Women.")

U.S. Is Strongest... HHH

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey says Republican Richard M. Nixon's security gap charge "has threatened to bring down the whole fragile architecture of peace."

"We are the strongest nation on earth," said Humphrey Friday.

"There is no security gap," he said. "There will be no survival gap—unless we follow Mr. Nixon's advice."

Nixon said Thursday the United States is faced with "a gravely serious security gap" due to the Democrats.

"The present state of our defenses is too close to the peril point, and our future prospects are in some respects downright alarming," said Nixon.

Humphrey said the United States has 150 heavy bombers and 600 tankers compared to the Soviet Union's 150 heavy bombers and 50 dual tanker-bombers.

Humphrey said the United States has 75 nuclear submarines compared to 57 Soviet atomic subs.

Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford said in Washington the Russians have 900 intercontinental ballistic missiles, 180 more than a year ago, but still 154 fewer than the United States has.

More Nuclear Subs

Humphrey said of Nixon's charge: "In an effort to catch votes he is playing politics with our national security, undermining the confidence of our allies, encouraging recklessness among our enemies and undermining our long and patient efforts to bring a rational end to the madness of the strategic arms race."

Nixon had some praise, however, Friday for President Johnson's conduct of the Paris peace talks.

Nixon said Johnson is "driving very hard" for a Vietnam bombing halt. The Republican nominee denied what he called reports that "this spurt of activity is a cynical, last-minute attempt by Johnson to salvage the candidacy" of Humphrey.

But Lawrence F. O'Brien, Democratic national chairman, said Nixon used "artful rhetoric to convey a vicious and false accusation without taking responsibility for his words."

LeMay, meanwhile, said at a news conference, "The communists are using the negotiations as a platform for a lot of propaganda."

"We have to convince North Vietnam that we're going to destroy everything they have and then start doing it," said LeMay at a dinner later.

LeMay's running mate, George C. Wallace, said at a Harrisburg, Pa., fund-raising dinner that Nixon should "get down in the arena with the American people and discuss the issues."

Wallace referred to Nixon's refusal to take part in a three-way televised debate.

Wallace offered to step aside and let Humphrey and Nixon debate alone, as long as Wallace had a half hour of his own right after the debate.

Nixon said the debate would provide Wallace with a ready-made audience. "That would just be murder as far as we're concerned," said Nixon.

All three presidential candidates are scheduled to appear on television interview programs the Sunday before the election. Nixon will be on NBC's "Meet the Press for a half hour at 1 p.m. EST. Humphrey and Wallace will be on ABC's "Issues and Answers" for a full hour at the same hour, along with their running mates. ABC said the opponents will not debate.

Allies Kill 516 Communists As Viet War Goes Full Blast

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied troops using weaponry ranging from naval gunfire to flamethrowers killed at least 516 Communist soldiers on three fronts in the heaviest fighting since a Vietnam War lull began, military spokesmen said today.

American troops killed 232 North Vietnamese soldiers in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in the largest of the battles Friday. The Americans were supported by jet fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships, land-based artillery, tanks and naval gunfire.

To the south on South Vietnam's central coast, troops of the South Korean "White Horse" division used grenades and flamethrowers to flush Communist troops from caves five miles southwest of Nha Trang and killed 204 of their enemy. The natural caves on a 3,000-foot ridge known as Dong Bo mountain have harbored Communist troops for more than 20 years.

Beat Off Attack

Still farther south, an estimated 200 Communists flung themselves against an American infantry night outpost about 65 miles north of Saigon. Calling in artillery support, the U.S. troops beat off the attack and killed 80 of the Red soldiers.

U.S. casualties in the fighting at the outpost were listed as five killed and 20 wounded. The American force in the DMZ battle lost six dead and 29 wounded. The South Korean troops lost no dead and suffered only "light casualties," military spokesmen said.

As the ground fighting raged Friday and U.S. fighter-bombers continued their raids on the southern portion of North Vietnam, Radio Hanoi declared North Vietnam would make no deals in exchange for a total U.S. bombing halt.

The Communist radio in a broadcast monitored in Saigon denied the North Vietnamese government had accepted "some conditions" set forth by President Johnson in his proposals for a full halt to bombing raids. Hanoi said the reports were an invention of the "American propaganda machine," U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu held their seventh meeting in the past 10 days in Saigon Friday. A Saigon newspaper said it was a "decisive" attempt to reach agreement on peace moves.

In the DMZ, troops of the U.S. 5th Infantry Division sweeping on foot and on tanks pinned down a North Vietnamese battalion of an estimated 600 men five miles northeast of Con Thien.

Helicopter gunships lashed the Red positions with machine gun and rocket fire. U.S. fighter-bombers set off a series of explosions in Communist bunkers, while allied artillery from South of the DMZ and naval ships in the Tonkin Gulf fired tons of shells at the Communist battalion.

LBJ Granddaughter Claimed by Politics

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President and Mrs. Johnson's two-day-old granddaughter, "doing beautifully" at Bethesda Naval Hospital, already has been claimed by politics.

Among the many messages wellwishers sent the Johnsons' elder daughter, Lynda Bird Robb, was one from White House aspirant Hubert H. Humphrey.

"Hooray," it said. "Another Democrat enters the world. We send our deepest love."

The proud grandfather himself seemed to imply he foresaw a role in the public spotlight for the seven-and-a-half pound infant.

"She has black hair and apparently is healthy and vociferous," Johnson said in announcing her birth early Friday. "She seems to know she is here and has work cut out for her, because she has already expressed herself."

Doctors at the hospital in nearby Bethesda, Md., reported mother and child were doing fine. They are expected to go home to the White House sometime between Tuesday and Thursday.

Lynda and the baby's father, Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, now serving in Da Nang, Vietnam, have decided on a name but have not yet made it public.

The First Lady, baptized Claudia Alta, eventually adjusted to the not particularly welcome nickname of Lady Bird, gave an emphatic "no" when asked if Bird would be part of her first granddaughter's name.

The White House planned to make public later today official photographs of the new baby.

Robb also will get his first look at his daughter's picture this weekend when Gen. Lewis Walt, assistant Marine Corps commandant, drops them off at Da Nang while on a special mission in the area.

Lynda, 24, has been kept company at the hospital by her sister Luci Nugent, 21.

Cushing to Resign Over Jackie Furor

BOSTON (UPI) — Cardinal Richard J. Cushing rolled his blue but tired eyes, and in the raspy voice that seems like a perpetual incantation, announced he would resign as Archbishop of Boston.

A storm had been unleashed by the elderly prelate's defense of the marriage of Jacqueline Kennedy to Greek multimillionaire Aristotle Onassis. By marrying a divorced man, Mrs. Kennedy incurred the displeasure of the Roman Catholic Church—except Cushing.

Cushing, long a confidant of the Kennedys and 22 years archbishop of one of the largest Catholic archdioceses in the United States, knew well in advance the widow of the late president would marry Onassis, one of the world's wealthiest men.

Unable, and perhaps unwilling to stop it, the cardinal gave the union his unofficial blessing.

Gutter Mail

On Friday, Cushing, for days deluged by what he called "gutter" mail from persons who condemned his defense of Mrs. Onassis, announced he would resign at the end of this year. He had been planning retirement at age 75—in two years.

A high-level vatican source said Friday night Pope Paul VI held Cushing "in high esteem and probably would turn down any resignation."

The controversy which has swirled around Cushing originated with a speech before the Caritas Guild Tuesday. He then made an emotional plea for charity for the former First Lady, for understanding and compassion.

He rejected the notion Jacqueline Kennedy was a "public sinner" or excommunicated from the church because of her marriage.

"Why can't she marry whoever she wants to marry?" the cardinal said.

The storm broke. Some Catholics were infuriated. A member of the church is not permitted to marry a divorced person without incurring severe penalties.

Blames Press

The cardinal, after several days of reflection and a barrage of criticism, called his speech "my offhand remarks" and he charged the press with distorting the meaning of his defense.

"I honestly told Jackie—it's your life, not my life. You can marry anyone you want, but not within the Catholic Church," the archbishop said.

Cushing explained to Mrs. Kennedy that if Onassis' first marriage were annulled and the terms of the annulment were acceptable to the Catholic Church, the marriage would be proper and legal theologically. Otherwise, she would be denied the sacraments.

"I told all this to Jacqueline," the cardinal said, "but she had her mind all made up."

"When her mind was settled, I could do nothing about changing her mind—at least I could be kind to her, charitable to her, nice to her," Cushing said.

IN THIS PAINTING and engraving, titled "A Brisk Gale, Bay of New York" a graceful chapter from Hudson River history is recalled. It was probably painted in 1838 by artist J. W. Bennett and the engraving was issued in 1839. It shows those symbols of an era, the Hudson River Sloops, which once sailed local waters by the hundreds. (Photo courtesy I. N. Phelps Stokes Collection of American Historical Prints, Prints Division, N.Y. Public Library)

Hudson River Sloop Will Sail Again

"I can see them now," said old Verplanck in 1808, "65 to 75 feet long, 20 to 25 feet wide, mast 80 to 100 feet, bowsprit 25. Capacity 50 to 200 tons of cargo, crew of ten, including captain, cabin boy and cook."

What he could see was the Hudson River Sloops which ruled the waterway between Albany and New York for well over 100 years. But, as with so many things good and graceful, they bowed to progress. Steam powered ships came along to take their freight business and the railroads proliferated and stole their passengers.

By 1900, instead of hundreds of high-masted sloops sailing the then crystal clear waters of the Hudson, there were only occasional survivors used as yachts or converted into harbor lighters. Today, sadly, the Hudson River sloop is totally extinct. Many ended their days by having their hulls filled with rocks and sunk to make breakwaters or docks.

The far-famed sloops were originally Dutch seagoing vessels which had been redesigned to sail the Hudson's tricky currents and to cope with her fickle breezes.

Easy Tacking

They carried immense gaff-rigged mainsails (some as big as 90 feet on the boom) and usually just a jib and topsail. The sail area was huge compared with the schooners of the time, but this made for easier tacking.

Gliding along downstream from Albany, the sloops carried produce from our river valley and, on the return run from New York, brought dry goods to upstate buyers. Many of the packets provided passengers with luxuriously appointed staterooms.

In a fair wind the sloops made 8 or 10 miles an hour. Add the tide to that (2 or 3 miles per hour more) and sometimes the trip from the Battery in Manhattan to Fishkill Landing was less than five hours. Downstream, against the tide, took longer; might run to 15 or 16 hours if the wind was calm.

In 1810 there were 206 sloops sailing the Hudson. By 1860 some 450 were registered for trade. Competition between them was keen, races were and every day occurrence, and the personalities of their captains became legendary.

First to China

Large and small versions proliferated but by 1860, construction on the Hudson River Sloops had almost stopped. Sometimes they left the confines of the river to prove themselves still seaworthy as vessels. One sloop, The Experiment, only 60 feet long, made the first voyage from America to China as early as 1787. Other sloops took to the high seas to hunt seals, raced around Cape Horn, and made trading runs to the Orient.

There was nothing more exciting for a Hudson River family in those days than the prospect of a trip to Albany of New York on a sloop. Many had their own personal favorites among the captains or the sloops and would wait for weeks in advance to become passengers on the craft of their choice.

Now, because of a present day dream, the Hudson River Sloop will sail again. Hopefully, within the year, we will see the huge white mainsail slipping past the bluffs of the Hudson Valley as they did by the hundreds a century ago. This will be possible because of an important historical restoration which has already begun to take place.

Last week the shipbuilding yard of Harvey F. Gamage at South Bristol, Maine was the scene of an event that will make of a dream a reality. There the keel was laid for a replica of the Hudson River Sloop—the "work horse" of the Hudson a century ago.

The sloop is being built for Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc., whose membership is made up of private citizens and organizations all along the Hudson, who visualize the building of the replica as an educational program.

A Floating Museum

The new sloop, when completed, will become a floating museum. It will sail yearly from community to community on the Hudson River and, when its flag is hoisted at landings, it will be boarded and visited by the public, including individuals, groups and school classes.

Plans call for trained personnel to be on board, and visiting the new sloop promises to be a memorable educational experience. Of solid oak, she'll carry original cargoes, artifacts of her period, and the history of this river and valley to all residents. A Hudson River Museum afloat—that's what she'll be.

The replica has been designed by Cyrus Hamlin, president of his own noted marine architecture firm in Bar Harbor. Hamlin, who designs and supervises the construction of many pleasure craft and cruise ships, has a compelling interest in historical sailing ships, and has researched this particular project well. The new sloop will be a composite of the typical sloop of the 1860's and his design reflects the best points of the 400 Hudson River Sloops built along this river.

The replica will have an overall length of 75 feet, a beam of 24 feet 6 inches, a mast of 85 feet and will displace 100 tons. She will be gaff-rigged; a small topsail and jib; a movable centerboard. The huge main sail—4,900 square feet—will be her identifying mark in the years ahead.

Built the "Hero"

When the keel was laid last week up in Maine, it was done so by expert hands. The Gamage Shipbuilders have built 240 wooden vessels, among them the "Hero," an Arctic vessel built for the U. S. Government. The Gamage artisans have had much practical experience in creating authentic replicas.

Among those on hand for the keel laying were designer Cyrus Hamlin, officials of the Gamage Yard, famed folk singer Pete Seeger who's serving as chairman of the Sloop Board when he's not performing on TV or cutting records, and Alexander Saunders Jr., president of the Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc., which has its headquarters at Cold Spring, N. Y.

The sloop is being built from contributions of both money and needed materials. With $120,000 needed for the entire project, one quarter of that amount has already been raised in the past two years through donations. More money is still needed, however, and TEMPO readers who would like to share in the project and the dream can do so by sending contributions to: Alexander Saunders, Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc., Box 265, Cold Spring, N. Y. 10516. Ten dollars will buy you a charter membership in the organization, but you are free to contribute or pledge more if you wish.

The Poet Who Irks the Politicians ...Is a Neophyte in Name Only...

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Nine times out of ten the audience is not familiar with his name. And once he's been introduced, most people find themselves wondering how such a euphonious sounding combination like Peter Kane Dufault could have been conferred on a man who looks rugged enough to tackle low in a rugby game.

Rugby, however, is not his bag. Back before he became a political neophyte and was still in school, he was about as good as they come at football, ice hockey and track. Today he leans more toward soccer and fencing, both of which he teaches at Barlow School over in Amenia.

But, if the audience is not quite prepared for him and has, more often than not, come to hear his two more highly publicized opponents, they are shortly convinced of his ability to communicate. No sooner has Peter Kane Dufault launched into his opening remarks than those present are literally rolling in the aisles. With a satirical humor that seems to combine the best that we once expected of Will Rogers and the barbs we still expect of Mort Sahl, he has his listeners laughing throughout. He also leaves them thinking; perhaps because he leaves his own feet figuratively (much as he must in soccer) when he goes into each new political subject. Before the evening is over a lot of the old accepted beliefs often come tumbling down.

It was Goethe who said, "Nothing shows a man's character more than what he laughs at." Of late, there has been concern over the American character as shown by what we laugh at—and fail to laugh at seriously? Has satire on our private and public mores become unhealthfully scarce?

Not where Peter Kane Dufault is concerned. If laughter shows our character, it is reflected in the response Dufault gets from an audience when he solemnly eyes his 25-year-old Democratic opponent and quips, "Personally, I don't trust anybody under thirty." And when he jibes at his over-40 Republican opponent for charging Dufault with being unbelievable "irresponsible" when he jokes (?) that if cops are allowed to carry guns while off-duty, the rest of us should have them, too. And when he remarks wryly that it is comforting to find that even, Republicans have their haven and their saints and their heroes.

Speaking and debating across five counties, and knocking on doors of new suburban cottages to hand his leaflets to housewives, Dufault is campaigning for Congress here in this 28th District. Although he runs as the Liberal candidate, he is not particularly a liberal per se. And although his with is savor sharp, he is far from a professional clown.

Dufault is a long-time Democrat and was a staunch supporter of Senator Eugene McCarthy earlier this year when the Minnesotan made his bid for the Presidency. He agreed to run on the Liberal line because he was convinced that many of the things he feels "needs saying" this election year 1968, would have remained unsaid if he did not enter the fray against Fish and Dyson. And, if he often injects humor into the campaign (even his opponents laugh constantly at their own expense), he is deadly serious in his belief that he is the Candidate of Conscience.

But what intrigues most about the political career of 45-year-old Peter Kane Dufault, who served as a bomber co-pilot in the Air Force in World War II and later graduated from Harvard, is that he is the most unlikely of politicians. This is not to say that, if elected, he would serve more ably than most in Congress, but Dufault is primarily a poet (and a good one) and a teacher of creative writing.

He has two books to his credit: "Angel of Accidence" and "For Some Stringed Instrument." Verse under Dufault's byline has appeared in such prestigious magazines as The New Yorker, Atlantic Monthly, Harper's and Saturday Review. To support his wife and four children, he currently teaches creative writing at both Barlow School and Williams College; proves he's more Robert Graves than Robert Browning by coaching soccer and fencing, as well. He also teaches in the Upward Bound program in Poughkeepsie; has been, at one time or another, all those things writers of legend are supposed to have been. Such as: house-painter, pots and pans salesman, laborer, folk singer, Louis Harris Pollster, tree-surgeon, actor, journalist and photographer. Dufault still picks a plaintive guitar and sings a lyric stanza occasionally.

Some TEMPO readers should remember him as the subject of a television special, "A Look the Other Way," which followed the poet-teacher in his career as an instructor at the Barlow School and aired many of his moving poetic reflections on life. He also narrated a section of the award-winning CBS-TV documentary, "The Forgotten River" dealing with the decline of the Hudson.

Why, we wondered, would such a man consider even momentarily giving up a beautiful, weatherbeaten, old Federalist house with stone stoop in one of the most glorious spots in the Catskill countryside for a seat in Congress? A man who enjoys playing his five-string banjo and guitar, who rides his horse along the brooks bounding his property, whose privacy is precious to him and who loves the pastoral scene. Why would such a man exchange so much for the steamy city of Washington, if elected?

A lover of Robert Frost and Dylan Thomas, he actually has the reverse of political ambition. He calls it "political desperation," says he was "stung in politics" because Dyson vs. Fish conjures up the same no choice spectre as Nixon-Johnson once did. He feels his two opponents "would rather be congressman than candid," and that it is his job in his campaign to point up their desire "to win to start political careers for their own sakes, than for the sake of the country, or any constitutional principle."

Dufault rarely mentions himself in his debates with his opponents, except to point out the differences in the financing of the three campaigns. Said Dufault when Dyson and Fish wrangled publicly over who was spending more of his father's money: "My heart fails to bleed for them. While they squabble over millions, I had to borrow three bucks from campaign manager's wife to pay for the gas to come here tonight."

Like the reporter, rewriter and editor he once was and the poet he now is, he dwells on the issues. For him, these are Vietnam, the Kerner Report, the police power of the CIA and the FBI, and the breakdown in morality.

Still, he is not above using his literary talents to make points for his side. When a Dutchess County paper invited him to write a review of Jane Barry's novel, "Grass Roots," which deals with the congressional race two years ago between Joe Resnick and Dufault's current opponent, Ham Fish, he studiously avoided taking any personal pokes at Fish in the review. He didn't need to. He simply suggested that author Barry herself painted Fish as "the ideal lump of clay for his campaign manager to work up into a Republican congressman—a handsome patrician boob and bore, empty of either character or ideas—a simple clod who could produce nothing more than window-dressing."

On the basis of that, it would be titillating to see what he might write if asked to review John Dyson's just published book on the Hudson Valley.

Should some miracle occur and Dufault find himself elected on Nov. 5—and even his staunchest supporters admit that it would take a miracle—poet Dufault will have done what poet McCarthy could not do. Yet, characteristically, Dufault is undeterred by what most people feel is impossible. "The money: it's important, it's possible and it's worth a try."

The funny thing is that his serious intellectualism, his sharp-as-a-finely-honed-razor and inquisitive and questioning mind, and the ready wit that could conceivably earn him a fortune as a writer for Johnny Carson, will probably cost him the election here. It would not do so in Arkansas, Alabama or Louisiana...in Texas, Kentucky or Tennessee. Because, you see, he picks a mean guitar and sings a maudlin hillbilly ditty like "Old Joe Clark" with real country flair. Add to that the fact that he sports a drooping mustache reminiscent of those worn by our finest men in blue at the turn of the century, and one which puts those currently exhibited by the Smothers Brothers to shame...and you come up with a winner down there below that line known as the M&D.

A Special Feature for Halloween

Two Actors Who Put 'Horror' Into Films

He's as strong as ten mortal men. His is the power to command the wolves of the forest, the rats of the waterfront, the fog and the thunder. He is Dracula, Crown Prince of the Undead, at whose beckoning strong men rise from the dampness of the grave to obey the whims of the devil.

For 30 years this legendary Halloween horror was played on the stages and screens of the world by Bela Lugosi, an actor born only scant miles from the country where the Dracula legend originates.

Born Bela Blasko in Lugos, Hungary, in 1882, Lugosi grew up as a child believing strongly in things that go BUMP in the night and send a shiver down the spines of mere men. Lugosi once told an interviewer: "I was not such a brave kid in Hungary. Never did I go down into our cellar. It was full of bats."

Bats in Hungary meant vampires — of which Dracula, of course, was such a manifestation.

Far From Wicked

If Bela Lugosi, the actor, represented all that was evil, Lugosi, in real life, was far from a wicked man. Those who knew him praised him as a sensitive and loving father.

Misfortune dogged his footsteps, however. While working on a film called "Mark of the Vampire" for MGM in 1935, he received from his doctor legal medical doses of morphine for shooting pains in his legs. Perhaps, in some ways, he was a weak man and, probably for emotional reasons of his own, he continued to seek narcotic drugs in the years that followed. From that time on, for Lugosi, there were temporary recoveries, and relapses into addiction, culminating in his death from heart failure in 1956. If audiences shuddered to see Count Dracula drinking human blood, Bela Lugosi died having given of his to a world of movie-goers who often shuddered at the mere mention of his name.

The world was fascinated, too, by the name of Peter Lorre. A master of horror, he had — oddly enough — also been born in Hungary. Peter Lorre, "M," the pathological child killer of Germany, the musician with the hands of a dead man in the mad "Mad Love," the pop-eyed, lovable little menace who couldn't hurt a fly. Peter Lorre, who nonetheless convinced millions of theatre-goers via his magnificent acting talent that he was a sinister, not to be trusted emissary of evil.

Poisonous Tale

Once Lorre walked into a Los Angeles store to purchase some rat poison to rid his household of pests (did we say he couldn't hurt a fly?) when an elderly female fan recognized him. The ensuing conversation went something like this:

Lady fan to sales clerk: "Isn't that Peter Lorre?"

Sales Clerk: "It is indeed."

Lady fan: "What's he doing here?"

Sales clerk: "Buying rat poison."

The elderly matron, too startled to speak, said nothing for the moment while the clerk went about his business. Moments later, however, she grasped his arm and whispered frantically in his ear: "I don't think you'd better sell it to him. I've seen all of his movies and "

Lorre, however, was simply not the violent type. During his lifetime, he was one of the best loved men in Hollywood. He was also a personal friend of the John Kennedys, and once told reporters he was particularly interested in Jacqueline Kennedy's struggle to keep her children as unaffected as possible by the head-turning attention of the White House.

Liked Him Evil

Lorre felt that he might have a somewhat similar problem with his little girl, who was then ten. He was afraid that she might be disturbed by the knowledge that her father was one of the country's best-hated spooks. But he eventually found to his surprise that she was as deliciously horrified by his movie roles as were total strangers. In fact, as it turned out, Lorre's daughter was proud as punch of her father's evil reputation.

Lorre died in the summer of 1964, mourned by his family and everyone else who knew him. Attesting to the fact that he was held in high esteem by the industry was the presence of such actors at his funeral as Edward G. Robinson, Jerry Lewis, Red Skelton, Gilbert Roland and Sir Cedric Hardwick. Also present was actor John Carridine who, like Lorre and Lugosi, has become famous, in part, for horror roles. he twice played Dracula. He also attended school here in Kingston.

It somehow seems fitting to pay tribute to these two "horrificing" actors as Halloween approaches. For both were born in a land where All Hallow's Eve is celebrated behind bolted doors; that land of brimstone and garlic, where masks are worn to frighten away evil spirits. Both came to the U.S. to make a career of bringing to life on the screen the terrors they'd accepted as reality in childhood. Both died in California within 10 years of the other — Lugosi of heart failure, Lorre of stroke...both heart ailments.

The silver screen no longer seems half so evil without them. (Submitted to TEMPO by PAUL ATKINSON, 297 Hasbrouck Avenue, Kingston, N.Y.)

LUGOSI AS 'DRACULA' made Transylvania a household word

Bring Missitucky Fantasy to Stage

Three nights a week the Coach House Players' barn on Kingston's Augusta Street is filled with the sounds of rehearsal as cast and crew work at fever pitch to bring their fall production, "Finian's Rainbow" to local audiences.

"Rainbow" is the humorous musical fantasy that delighted Broadway audiences for 91 weeks back in the late '40s. Now it'll bring its pot of gold, its lovable leprechaun and its collection of all-time great hit songs to the stage of the J. Watson Bailey School here on Nov. 21, 22 and 23. The local version will star Bill LaVoie and Linda Quartrell in the lead roles of the fey Irishman and his lovely daughter from Glocca Morra.

LaVoie will appear as the genial Finian McLonergan who filches a pot of gold from the leprechauns of his native Emerald Isle and brings it to America with the idea of burying it somewhere and thereby letting it increase. He's heard that Americans bury their gold at Fort Knox and it mysteriously multiplies.

He chooses for his burying-ground a spot in the state of Missitucky, inhabited by poor tenant farmers, on land coveted by a bigoted politician named Senator Billboard Rawkins. And he finds that he has been followed to this rural area by a pixy-ish representative of the pilfered leprechauns who want their pot of gold back.

These circumstances lead to a number of fanciful and amusing situations—one in which the poor farmers sing of having reached the "Great Come-and-Get-It Day" because the very rumor of gold on their property establishes their credit and permits them to buy everything they want. This further gives them the chance to launch into another famous choral number from the show—"When the Idle Poor Become the Idle Rich."

The most exultant songs of "Finian's Rainbow," known by heart to most music lovers since the show was first produced, are "If This Isn't Love" and "This Time of Year." "How Are Things in Glocca Morra?" and "Old Devil Moon" are haunting songs with a combination of romantic Irish and American sentiment, while "Necessity" and "The Begat" are tuneful patter-songs with a touch of blues added. Dixon McGrath will sing two other popular numbers of the show, "Something Sort of Grandish" and "When I'm Not Near the Girl I Love," in his role of the pursuing leprechaun, who decides when he falls in love with a mortal girl that he will become mortal, too, and a naturalized American as well. Others in the leading roles will be Paul W. Hackett, Terry Serravallo, Sam Tesoriero, Joe O'Shaughnessy and Bill Chavis. Bill Skilling is the show's director.

The story of "Finian's Rainbow" was written by E. Y. Harburg, and the song lyrics are by Harburg to music by Burton Lane. When the show was revived in New York in the spring of 1955, critics and audiences hailed it as fresh as it had been when it first scored its Broadway hit. It is one of the few instances of a successful light entertainment with a sharp political viewpoint in its satirizing of a bombinating pro-segregation politician.

'God's Trombones'--Drama and Dance

19-KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, OCTOBER 26, 1968

"God's Trombones," a religious drama incorporating music and dance, will be presented at Kingston's Old Dutch Church tomorrow morning at both the 9:30 and 11 o'clock services. The program presented by the Wesleyan Dancers of Newburgh's Grace United Methodist Church, combines Negro spirituals with the poetry of James Weldon Johnson, and is based on a collection of old plantation sermons dealing with such familiar Biblical themes as the creation, Noah's ark, the crucifixion and the day of judgment.

Poet Johnson, who died in 1938, had once practiced law and served as secretary of the NAACP for 11 years. During that time, he was acknowledged as the spearhead of the movement against racial injustice. During those years, too, he wrote and published numerous books and was a frequent contributor to leading magazines. In addition, he taught creative literature at Fisk University and New York University. But it was "God's Trombones," the book which represented his poetic interpretation of sermons he heard preached in his childhood by the "old time Negro preachers," that brought him lasting fame.

The Wesleyan Dancers come from several communities in the greater Newburgh area, and from varying backgrounds, and have appeared in churches and communities throughout the northeastern United States. The group, which is devoted to the use of dance as a form of religious expression, is sponsored by the Commission on Worship and the Fine Arts of Grace Church, and is directed by Judith Bennett of Cornwall.

Other dancers appearing in the presentation are Wendy Hartman, Carol Thaler, Carol Seaman, Doris Templeton, Beverly Conley, Marion DuBois and Sister Grace, O.S.H. The narrator will be Bill Sacher of radio station WGHQ.

A Related Note

In announcing this program, a spokesman for the congregation of the Old Dutch Church notes:

"Ours is an age in which the church stirs with new life, when renewal has become a catchword, and clergy and laymen alike engage in serious reappraisals of traditional thought and practice. It is paradoxical that, at the same time, the church has discovered the oldest form of worship known to man—the dance. From earliest times man has danced; indeed, references to dance abound in the Old Testament.

"They become fewer in the New Testament, but evidence indicates that dance was an accepted part of the life of the church, except in isolated instances until the Reformation when emphasis in Protestant worship shifted to the spoken word—to the sermon. Later Puritan influence stamped out all remaining vestiges of dance, drama or pageantry in Protestant worship, and it remained for the 20th century to foster a rebirth of sacred dance."

Various names have been used for sacred dance groups—dance choir, rhythmic choir, symbolic movement choir—but all testify to essentially the same experience: the worship of God through the use of the total person—mind, spirit and body. The congregation of the Old Dutch Church invites all those interested to attend this unique presentation tomorrow.

The first in an annual series of U.S. postage stamps to emphasize the need for protecting wildlife will be a six-center featuring two wood ducks in flight as designed by California artist Stanley W. Galli.

First day ceremonies were scheduled for Oct. 24 at Cleveland, Ohio.

One of the ducks is a red-throated male wood duck with one wing partially obscuring a female in the background.

With the Mexico City Olympics in the news and with the increasing number of stamps commemorating this international event, the Minkus Stamp Journal has featured two timely stories about the Olympics in its current issue.

One article is entitled "The Olympic Games" and traces the history of these games. The other is a complete nine-page topical checklist—the Olympics on stamps—with more than 300 illustrations.

The Minkus Stamp Journal is available at 50 cents a copy directly from the Minkus Publishing Co., 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

Music Festival

Twenty area colleges, including Marist, Ladycliff, Manhattan, Iona, Orange County Community College, Siena, Fordham and Vassar, are currently joining with Mount Saint Mary College in a Music Festival as part of its College Fall Weekend. The festival began yesterday and will run through tomorrow on the Newburgh campus.

Last night's program spotlighted various talent groups from each college in a competitive songfest. Winners received cash prizes and the public was in attendance. A mixer is planned tonight at Marist and tomorrow morning, a Folk Mass will be held at the college.

How? It's simple. We'll play it on the amazing new Harman-Kardon SC-2020 compact stereo music system. And then don't be surprised if you hear instruments on that old record you never heard before. Or a depth and dimension of music that you never knew was there. You see the SC-2020 is a new breed of music system. It's not very large. And it isn't terribly technical looking. But what it does to music can only be described as incredible. It makes music come alive... reach out and grab you.

And not only with records. The SC-2020 also has an ultra-sensitive FM/FM stereo radio. And two of the most exciting new speakers we've ever heard. All designed into a system that takes up a minimum of space and produces a maximum of sound. But descriptions don't mean a thing. Bring in an old record. You won't believe your ears. ## ELECTRONIC NEON SCULPTURE

The studios of artists have changed with the times and neon sculptor Victor Millonzi's creative quarters in Woodstock, above, looks more workshop than studio.

Millonzi is the first artist to make use of the new flow-neon electronic unit in his work, and the result will be featured in a premiere exhibition at NBC Studios, Rockefeller Plaza, New York City, from today through Nov. 9.

Light, sound and motion combine in this entirely new art form and Millonzi's "Monitor Beeper," right, combines art and technology into a one-piece environment. Patterns of random lights and a choreography of colored light ribbons dance to music electronically produced, with each piece of neon preset by Millonzi to illuminate at varying speed and cycle time to assure travel in different orbits. Each sculpture unit also has a built-in miniature broadcasting station to control the illumination flow. All of which makes Woodstocker Millonzi an artist, sculptor, scientist and technical expert.

New Names in Latin Art Show

The public is invited to view Orange County Community College's art exhibition, "New Names in Latin American Art," at the college's Harriman Gallery, Middletown.

William Majors, OCCC art instructor and chairman of the show, says 18 paintings, 15 graphics and five sculptures are on display currently and he has invited all those interested in art and Latin America to attend.

The show, which opened this week, will hang at the Harriman Gallery until Nov. 18. It is currently on national tour under auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

The exhibition encompasses a wide range of expression and media; gives "a synthetic but comprehensive panorama of the paths taken by the youngest mature generation of creators in Latin America" as stated in the catalogue accompanying the exhibition. There is Victor Chab's Kafkaesque world of insects, rendered in collage and somber impastos with an extremely painterly quality. Their brooding tones form an intense counterpoint to the clear, geometric spaces of Omar Rayo's paintings, suggesting a play of neatly organized cut-out shapes. In his white-on-white intaglio prints, Rayo explores such objects of daily use as a tin can or a safety pin, stripping them of presenting them, not without presenting them, not without cynicism, under such titles as "American Food" or "Little Machine".

Enrique Castro-Cid's constructions recall fantastic anatomical studies that reveal a poetic but forceful rendering of abstract forms, usually combined with three-dimensional objects and areas of bright colors. Using stencils and spray paint in multiple layers, Rogelio Polesello creates in his large-scale paintings a fusion of transparent color and illusionary spaces that stand in sharp contrast to the crisp and expressive ink drawings by Carlos Poveda. Drawn with imperative strokes, Poveda's drawings range in spirit from the brutal reality and criticism of his "Declamador" to an earthy humor and sensitivity of line in "Vanessa," a portrait of a small child looking over his mother's shoulder. The survey is completed with the sculpture of Raul Valdivieso, whose bronzes and studies for sculpture show a disciplined technique through their accomplished treatment of surfaces. His work reflects a concern for the elementary forms of life, creating vegetative forms that recall embryonic organisms.

Concert by John Miles For Mount Saint Mary

The Cultural Centre at Mount Saint Mary College announces the opening of ticket sales for the Nov. 9 performance of John Miles.

Possessed of a rich, warm, lyric tenor voice, Miles has impressed critics, musicians, and audiences throughout the eastern United States in opera, recital and oratorio.

After studying with Lola Wilson Hayes, Jonathan Brice, and Thomas Martin, Miles attended the Mannes College of Music Opera Workshop. He has performed with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and with the New York City Opera in "Carmen Jones" and "Porgy and Bess." He played the role of Neil in a summer theatre production of "Fiorello," and then appeared on Broadway and on tour in "Kwamina." His oratorio engagements include "The Messiah," "Elijah," Dvorak's "Stabat Mater," Verdi's "Requiem," Schubert's "Mass in E flat" and many Bach cantatas.

John Miles' varied career has encompassed radio and television, including appearances on WLIV and WFUV in New York City, CBS-TV, Camera Three, the Ed Sullivan Show, and concert appearances on Channel 43's Concert Artists Showcase.

For three seasons, as a member of the Metropolitan Opera's Chorus, Miles appeared in such varied works as Nebucco, Boris Godunov, Alceste, Die Meistersinger, Aida, Cavalleria, Pagliacci, Turandot, Otello, Gotterdammerung, Lohengrin, Verdi Requiem, Simon Boccanegra and Samson and Delila. Among the widely diversified solo roles in his classical repertoire are Luigi in Puccini's "Il Tabarro," Pinkerton in "Madame Butterfly," Tamino in Mozart's "Magic Flute" and Alfredo in Verdi's "La Traviata."

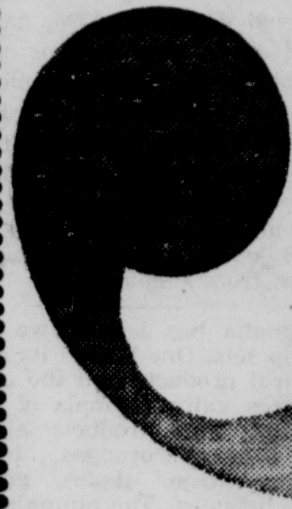

This past summer he was guest soloist with the Municipal Concert Series in the New York City park system with orchestra under the direction of Julius Grossman.

He has recently been the recipient of the New York Singing Teachers' Association Young Artists' Award, National Association of Negro Musicians' Award, Omega Psi Phi Award for continued study, and the Adele Feinberg Award at the Lola Hayes annual student recital at Judson Hall. This fall John Miles made his New York Town Hall debut sponsored by the New York Singing Teachers' Association.

Tickets for this event may be secured by contacting the Cultural Centre, Mt. St. Mary College, Newburgh.

Hand Me Down Things

BEING ASSOCIATED in the trade, so to speak, we do not suggest that classified advertising can be beat as a sales media. Still, there's something to be said for the old-fashioned method of reaching the public via bulletin boards.

For example, most supermarkets, laundromats, grocery stores and other business establishments dealing in newspapers and periodicals in Woodstock maintain bulletin boards. Upon these, patrons and the public advertise or tout numerous things for trade, barter or sale. That this practice always pays off for somebody is evident. We know a family of six that found for itself a charming and comfortably large apartment in Montreal during the "Man and His World Expo" when thousands were being turned away from motels and hotels in the Canadian city all season. The "find" was advertised hundreds of miles away from the source on the A&P board in Woodstock. Not only that, but it was priced exceptionally low for what it offered and could be had by the day, week or month.

Add to that item the fact that a musician friend of ours came up with a dream job in a soft rock group that's playing throughout the long, cold winter not far from sunny Mexico City—and that he found it from reading a similar bulletin board ad . . . and you'll understand why we spend more time persuing the walls than filling the shopping cart when we're in art colony emporiums. Who knows . . . Maybe someone will want to trade in an old Pulitzer Prize one of these days.

SOMEWHERE OR OTHER the kids around our house turned up the information that Red Skelton went to school only to about the fourth grade. Every time we got parentally stern about the homework bit and the horrors in store for dropouts, they'd use the old redhead as an example of a fellow who made his millions without benefit of a formal education.

They thought they had us for awhile there . . . and we thought so, too . . . until we did a little diligent research. Seems Red did indeed quit school early and began dancing in the streets at 10. By the time he was 12, he had joined a medicine show. But, after achieving fame, he acquired a high school diploma and some college credits.

So we've managed to squelch the heirs to our humble fortune for the time being. If we know our kids, however, they'll manage to come up with someone who's richer than Red to make their point all over again.

A YOUNG MOTHER of our acquaintance took note of our item last week concerning the possibility that individualists are not so much with us these days as they once were. There are still a few, she insists. She recalls that when she entered the maternity ward recently to have her first baby, she spotted an elderly gentleman from her neighborhood who had been several times married to women much his junior, and who still had a reputation as a roue. It seemed, she thought, a strange place to meet him, until it occurred to her that he was probably awaiting the birth of his next bride.

WE'VE DECIDED that the writers who toil for Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In just have to be using "goosequill and venom" in the course of their work.

SIGN OF THE TIMES seen on an area movie marquee: SPECIAL KIDDIE MATINEE — How TO SAVE A MARRIAGE — AND RUIN YOUR LIFE.

OUR PARTY POOPER of the month award to the guy who insists that Humphrey loses the election in New York, the blame will have to fall on Eugene McCarthy's shoulders. Our Blithe Spirit of the Month Award to the gal who retaliated that he was being unfair since McCarthy will only vote once and not in New York at that.

EXPRESSIONS we can do without: "I need it like a hole in the head," "He's one of my favorite people," "Well, it's my bedtime," "Don't do anything I wouldn't do," and "last but not least," "That's show biz."

WONDER if those political writers who have been referring to George Wallace as "a pompous little bantam rooster of a man" felt omniscient as all heck when the story broke that he'd lived in a former chicken house in New Mexico during his World War II army days?

Antiques Show

With a wealth of local interest in antiques in this area, many a TEMPO reader may feel inclined to motor up Albany way next month for a special Antiques Show and Sale.

It's being conducted by the 175-year-old Reformed Church of East Greenbush, near Albany; will be held Friday, Nov. 1 from 1-10 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 2 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The first show of its kind there, it will feature a variety of antiques including furniture, glass, books, prints, pictures, china, pewter, silver and many items of Americana.

It'll be held in the newly built Christian Education Building at the junction of Route 9 and Hays Road, five miles south of Albany; will benefit the church building fund.

TEMPO READERS WRITE

Successful Summer

Dear Editor:

Our Hudson River "troubadour program" has concluded a highly successful summer.

Don McLean sang for and met the people of some 40 Hudson communities. For many people he brought an additional feeling for their heritage.

Without the help of TEMPO this would not have been possible. In fact your participation in this project contributed to a general public awareness of the entire Hudson River community.

Your attention to Council news is greatly appreciated. Thank you for helping make our troubadour and the Hudson a continuing part of the state's folklore.

Best regards,
JOHN B. HIGHTOWER,
Executive Director
N.Y. State Arts Council

Good Idea . . . But

Dear Editor:

If suggestions are in order, I believe it would be advantageous to subscribers who receive The Freeman by mail, if you inserted TEMPO in Friday's issue instead of Saturday. It would then be available for use over the weekend by such subscribers. May I hear from you?

MRS. CHARLES J. GRAF
(Editor's note: We agree it's a good idea but, unfortunately, the scheduling and writing of the articles that go in TEMPO and the work necessitated in printing it make it impossible to have it off the presses before Saturday.)

On Increasing

Dear Editor:

I want to thank you for the wonderful article in TEMPO about the Jarvis Gallery and its garden party for Mr. Abraham Streifer.

I would also like to take this opportunity to compliment you on the increased size of TEMPO.

Sincerely,
GERTRUDE JARVIS
Jarvis Gallery Woodstock

Memory Lane

Dear Editor:

To let you know that I enjoyed reading your excellent article, "When Vaudeville Was Still King . . . etc."

It brought back memories when I lived in the Bronx and a cousin of mine who was a great fan of vaudeville used to take me as a youngster to the Palace on Broadway where the great stars used to perform.

Among others, I remember Trini, the great dancer from Spain.

NATHAN PRESSMAN

We Captured It

Dear Editor:

Thanks a million for the marvelous article on "Coffee Break" in a recent issue of TEMPO!

You captured exactly what we try to DO on the program — and, as always, the writing was perfection — plus!

Keep up the terrific TEMPO pace and thanks again.

Sincerely,
EVY NAVY
BILL SKILLING
Kingston

Vaudeville Days

Dear Editor:

I am so grateful for your article on our family ("When Vaudeville Was Still King and the Riccobono Brothers Crown Princes") in a recent issue of Tempo.

Thank you so very much.

Sincerely,
Emilia R. Weyhe
Kingston

They Got Paid

Dear Editor:

Thanks very much for helping make the Musicians' Open House and Festival No. 2 at Group 212 a success. Everyone enjoyed the music and the rural surroundings and the publicity helped to make it possible for the performers to be paid a token fee.

Because of the mass chaos just before the festival, we were not able to pick up enough copies of the story. Could we by chance have extra copies of that issue of TEMPO?

Thanks again.

Sincerely,
MICHAEL BERARDI,
Group 212

Parker Paintings

Paintings by Jack Parker of Binnewater will be on display at Bethany Hall, Old Dutch Church, Kingston, for the next two Sunday mornings.

Parker, formerly stationary engineer at the Hotel Pierre in New York City for 35 years, has been a full time resident of Ulster County for the past three years.

Local landscapes and New York Harbor scenes are featured in the oil paintings.

The display was arranged by Victoria Piasecki and will be open through 1:30 p.m. each Sunday.

What's New On Your Screen??

With Halloween almost upon us, it seems like the proper time for a few paragraphs on Boris Karloff. He's been introduced to a whole new generation, thanks to his old movies being shown on TV and, now, with the many TV shows he's been on in recent years, he's really getting to be—in his own words—"quite a public scandal."

Now 80-years-old, Karloff as an actor has thrived on horror roles for more than six decades; is still wide-eyed, alert as ever, full of good humor and thoroughly enjoying "having a crack at anything they want me to do."

There are limitations to what he can do since he suffers from an arthritic knee and emphysema but he says he can work as long as "they can get me from here to there in a wheel chair."

Karloff has never wanted to do anything but act and, in a busy year, he's made five movies, appeared on Red Skelton's show and will appear with Jonathan Winters, and recently signed to do a "Name of the Game" film.

His show with Winters this week will be a Halloween show and Karloff joked that since this is his season, he should get time and a half. He spends most of his time in London these days when he's not in Hollywood. As an octogenarian, he's looking forward to the future. And, why not? Karloff has a brother in his 90s.

Halloween Specials

But back to Halloween and two holiday specials the kids around your house will probably enjoy. Channel 5 will present a one-hour color music program, "The King Family Halloween Special," this Sunday from 8 to 9 p.m. The 45-member family will salute autumn and, in a special segment, the King Kid-dies will gather in front of an enormous jack-o-lantern to perform a Halloween recitation.

Following this telecast Channel 5 will carry a program on haunted houses, "Ghost in the House," airing from 9 to 10 p.m. Noted "ghost hunter" Hans Holzer will be featured and a special highlight of this Halloween special will be a seance trance in which medium Sybil Leek contacts the disturbed ghost of Aaron Burr in sequence filmed on the site of Burr's home on Greenwich Village's West Third Street.

Looking past Halloween to Election Day, Channel 17 has an excellent program coming up Tuesday, Oct. 29 at 9 p.m. on which five nationally syndicated political columnist will examine the election scene. Titled "One Week from Naw," it'll originate live from the National Press Club in Washington, D. C., and will have celebrated newsmen discussing who's likely to win, what the next administration will be like, the shape and direction of the next Congress, and what could be expected if the election is thrown into the House of Representatives.

Reflections

A segment was filmed for the Jerry Lewis show that the public will never see. It featured Jerry talking to youngsters and, during one taping, held up photos of politicians and asked the children to comment on them. Comments were: "He looks like he talks too much" (Humphrey); "He looks mean" (Wallace); "He doesn't look like a politician" (Reagan). The segment won't be seen because the networks worry about equal time.

The Canadian fur trapper character Don Pedro Colley plays on Daniel Boone this season is based on a real-life character, James P. Beckworth, a cowboy from northern California. He's mentioned in "The Negro Cowboy" and was known as a teller of tall tales.

LAST WEEK WE LIKED:

Any and all coverage of the Summer Olympic Games from Mexico City and Acapulco.

Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca on the Jackie Gleason show doing skits on a first dance, an Italian movie about a bike robbery and, Sid alone, as a concert pianist.

That "common, simple savior" of our nation, Pat Paulsen, in his own special, Pat Paulsen For President.

The unbelievably beautiful "Hemingway's Spain—A Love Affair," adapted from four of Ernest Hemingway's best known

ALL IS NOT — uh — work for Robert Wagner in ABC's Tuesday night derring-doer "It Takes a Thief." Now in his second season as Alexander Mundy, thief on the side of the angels, he has many pleasant moments away from the old safe-cracking dodge to share with his — uh — friends.

books and filmed in the sun-drenched country "Papa" loved more than any other. Rod Steiger was magnificent reading the words of the author.

Comic Paul Lynde singing "People" as nobody had ever heard it before on "That's Life." As a real estate agent who put his clients through personality and character probes because he believes in house fitting to people and vice versa, he was great!

TV's most engaging little people, the Peanuts gang, in "It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown," even though we'd seen it three times previously. Snoopy's World War I flying ace act never fails to break us up.

THIS WEEK WE THINK WE'LL LIKE:

Tonight, Sat., Oct. 26

MOVIE (NBC, 9 p.m.). A blend of fast-paced action and secret agent spoofery, it's the 1965 film, "Masquerade," starring Cliff Robertson and Jack Hawkins. Intrigue centers around the circus, kidnappers, triple agents and double crosses. A real British thriller.

Sunday, Oct. 27

21st CENTURY (CBS, 6 p.m.). Film focus on bioastronautics and space medicine — sciences that determine man's survival in space.

OLYMPICS (ABC, 6 p.m.). Final coverage of the Olympics, live and on tape, with equestrian events and closing ceremonies highlighted.

MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). "Is Paris Burning?" zeroes in on Allied troops approaching occupied Paris in 1944. International cast includes: Jean-Paul Belmondo, Charles Boyer, Leslie Caron, George Chakiris, Alain Delon, Kirk Douglas, Glenn Ford, Yves Montand, Anthony Perkins, Orson Welles, Robert Stack and Simone Signoret.

Monday, Oct. 28

THE CANDIDATES AND THE ISSUES (Channel 13, 9 p.m.). Will examine the major Presidential candidates and their stands on the key issues of election year 1968 with emphasis on Vietnam, law and order, political unrest, and the future course of domestic programs.

PRO FOOTBALL (CBS, 9:30 p.m.). The Green Bay Packers meet the Cowboys at Dallas in live play.

Tuesday, Oct. 29

ONE WEEK FROM NOW (Channels 13 & 17, 9 p.m.). Five famed columnist survey political trends; ponder who'll be the next President and other matters.

Friday, Nov. 1

NET PLAYHOUSE (Channels 13 & 17, 8:30 p.m.). The 300-year-old drama of Jacobean revenge, "Women, Beware Women," will have its U. S. TV premier. It stars Diana Rigg, once of "The Avengers."

NEWSFRONT (Channel 17, 10:30 p.m.). Paul O'Dwyer, Jacob Javits and James Buckley, contenders for the U.S. Senate seat from New York, discuss the issues. (Compiled by T. GEERTSEMA)

IF YOU WERE AWAKE at 6:30 last Tuesday morning to watch the Apollo 7 splashdown, you saw once again the type of TV newsmanship that makes Frank McGee one of the best in the business. Always excellent, he's a top-notch commentator whether the job calls for dawn delvings or midnight ramblings.

... AND IF YOU'RE STILL AWAKE this coming Thursday night at 8:30, you'll find that Raymond Burr is still solving sticky cases from his wheelchair as "Ironside." He's a bit more ambulatory this season; is seen getting in and out of cars by himself to illustrate the handicapped learn these things.

Summers Woodcut Show Opening This Tuesday

Carol Summers, internationally known print artist, whose woodcuts are included in virtually every major public collection in the United States, as well as in the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris, the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, and museums in Switzerland and Sweden, will have a show at Procter Art Center, Bard College, from Oct. 29 to Nov. 20. Summers, a former Woodstocker who is a 1951 graduate of the college, will be honored at an opening reception on Tuesday, Oct. 29, from 7 to 9 p.m., to which the public is invited.

After receiving his B.A. degree from Bard, Summers studied under Woodstock artist Arnold Blanch at the Art Students League of New York and subsequently at the Alfred University College of Ceramic Design and the Brooklyn Museum School of Art. He has been the recipient of an Italian Government Grant for Study in Italy, a Tiffany Foundation Fellowship, a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship and a Fulbright Fellowship, and has taught at Pratt, Hunter and the School of Visual Arts in New York, and last spring at Pennsylvania State University. Exhibitions of his work include One-Man Shows at Associated American Artists and The Contemporaries in New York; the San Francisco Museum of Art; the Washington Gallery of Modern Art; and a number of others, including an early show at the Academia degli Intronati in Siena, Italy. His work has been included in group shows in Tokyo, Paris and in the American Graphics Exhibition shown in Russia, Romania and Yugoslavia between 1963 and 1965, as well as at the Brooklyn Museum National Print Show and the Philadelphia Print Club Annual Print Show, most years since 1951, and two shows at the Museum of Modern Art. At the Paris Biennale in 1959 he was one of two American printmakers selected.

His work has been praised by many critics, including Mercedes Molleda, in Art International, Paul Moses of the Chicago Daily News, and John Canday, of The New York Times, who speaks of Summers as "long established as a woodblock artist of admirable force."

Following the reception on the evening of the 29th, the show at Bard will be open to the public daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hawaiians Love Their Bean Soup

Do the palm trees always wave gently in the ocean breezes in Hawaii? Well, most of the time. Does it ever get cold in Hawaii? Emphatically, yes! Some of the mountain caps have snow year 'round and certain sections of Maui are where the native Hawaiians go to enjoy the chill mountain winds, brisk frosty air. So what's better than a bowl of hot bean soup in the cool Fall or brisk Winter. Hawaiians love their bean soup and here is the most popular and most imitated, created by Ann Kamoe, the chef at Buzz's on the Wharf, Maui Yacht Basin.

Bean Soup

3 smoked ham hocks
1 pound soup bone
5 cups dried beans:
1 cup Michigan navies, ¾ cup each of pinto, cranberry, kidney, black eye, garbanzo, lima
5 medium onions, chopped fine
5 medium carrots, chopped fine
5 stalks celery, chopped fine (or 1 small bunch)
1 No. 2½ size can solid pack tomatoes
1 hot Portuguese sausage (or any hot garlic sausage)

Cover hocks and bones with water; add half again as much. Simmer, covered, for 2½ hours.

During same time, simmer 7 kinds of beans in 5 quarts of water, covered, about 2 hours or till tender. If needed, add more water.

Meantime, chop vegetables. Add to meat stock after it has cooked 2½ hours. Also add cooked beans and tomatoes.

Cut Portuguese sausage in slices about ¼ inch thick and pan fry till lightly browned. Add to soup. Slowly simmer for 30 minutes.

Soup should be cooled with ventilation under the pot. (Ann put a knife under the pot.) Refrigerate.

Soup is cooked a day before serving and gets better as it ages. If it lasts for more than a couple days, Ann adds finely shredded cabbage or pumpkin the last time around.

FOODS THAT FASCINATE

Edited for Tempo by Dorothy A. Narel

Chicken Breasts in Sauce for Party

Chicken breasts served in creamy sauce are perfect party food, especially when the chicken is golden brown, and the sauce enriched with mushrooms and slices of stuffed green olives.

To make the recipe quick and mistake-proof the sauce is chicken gravy from a can combined with half and half. The stuffed olives come from a glass jar that should be stocked in every refrigerator.

If you want to be really elegant, the chicken breasts may be boned before cooking, but this is not necessary as the well-cooked chicken breaks easily from the bones.

Chicken Breasts in Olive Sauce are party fare from the standpoint of appearance, texture and flavor, but that doesn't mean they can't be served for a family dinner. And if some of your family prefer dark meat, substitute chicken legs for some of the breasts. If you'd like to prepare this dish ahead, complete it to the point of covering it with foil and place in the refrigerator. When you're ready to bake it, just place in in a moderate oven and add ten minutes to the baking time.

Chicken Breasts in Sauce

2 packages (1 pound each) frozen chicken breasts, defrosted, or 3 large chicken breasts, halved (boned, if desired)

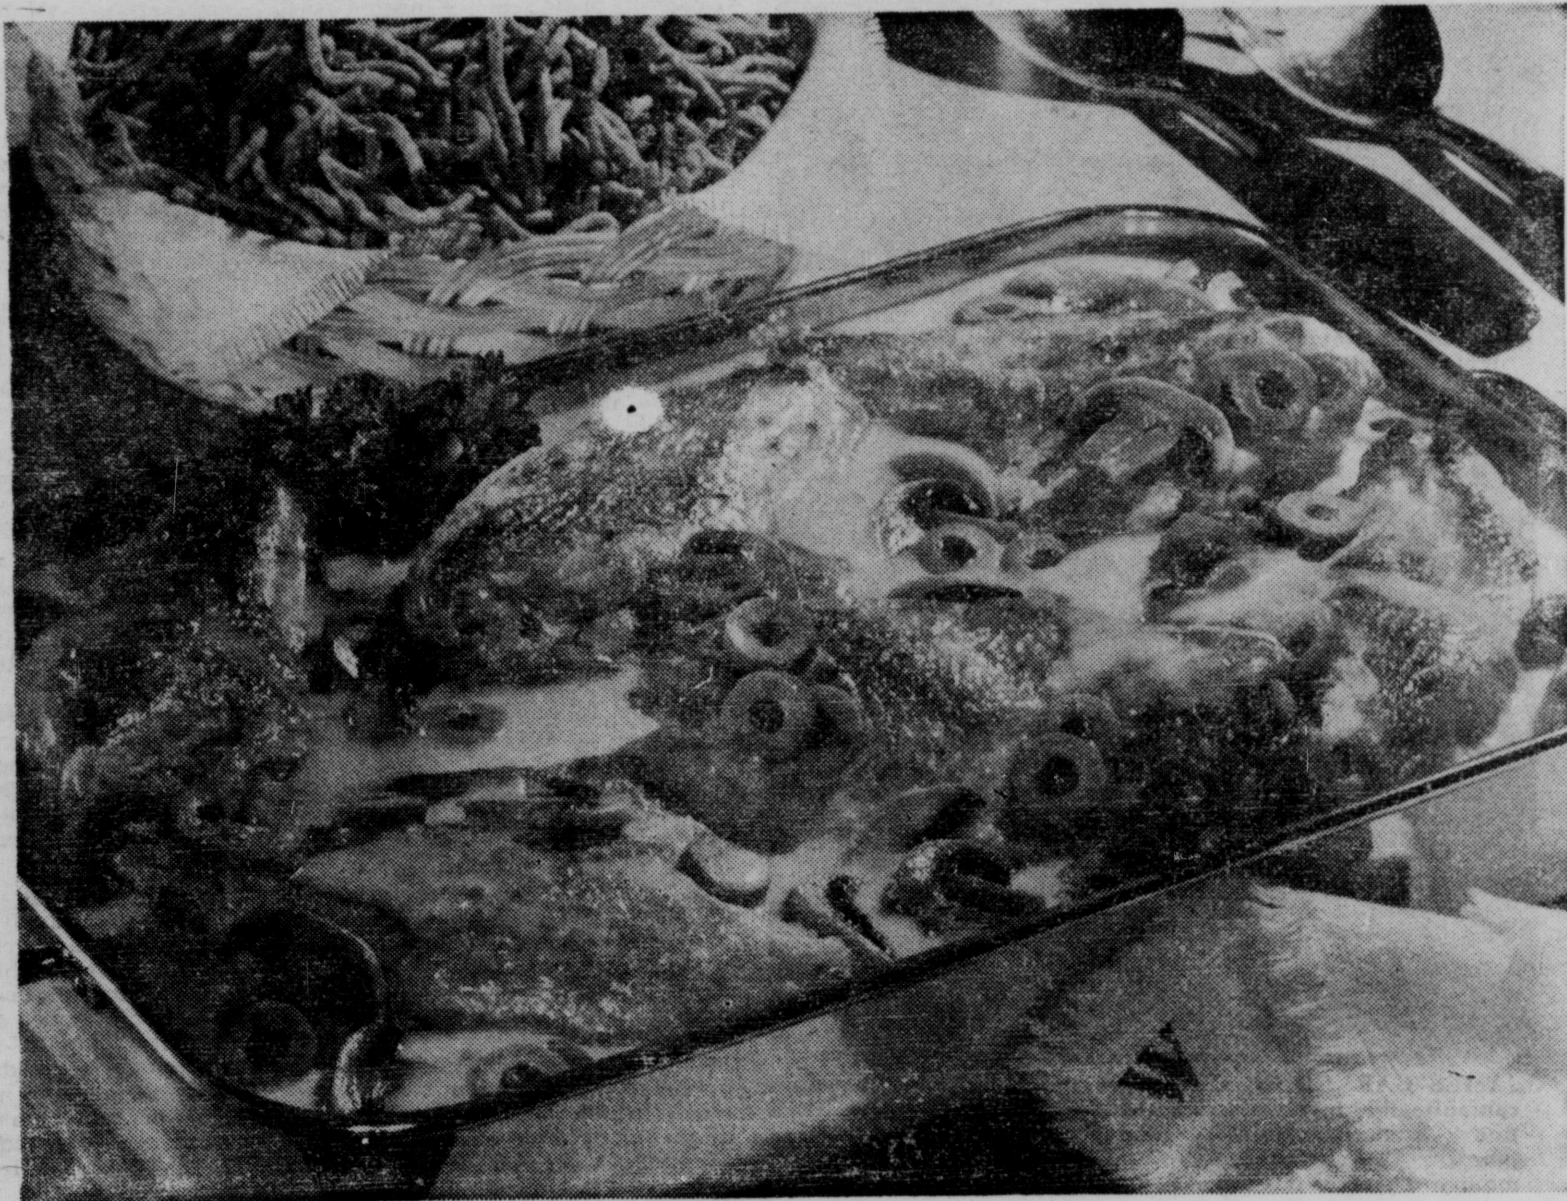

1/3 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon white pepper
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 tablespoon flour
1 can (10¾ ounce) chicken

gravy
½ cup half half (milk and cream)

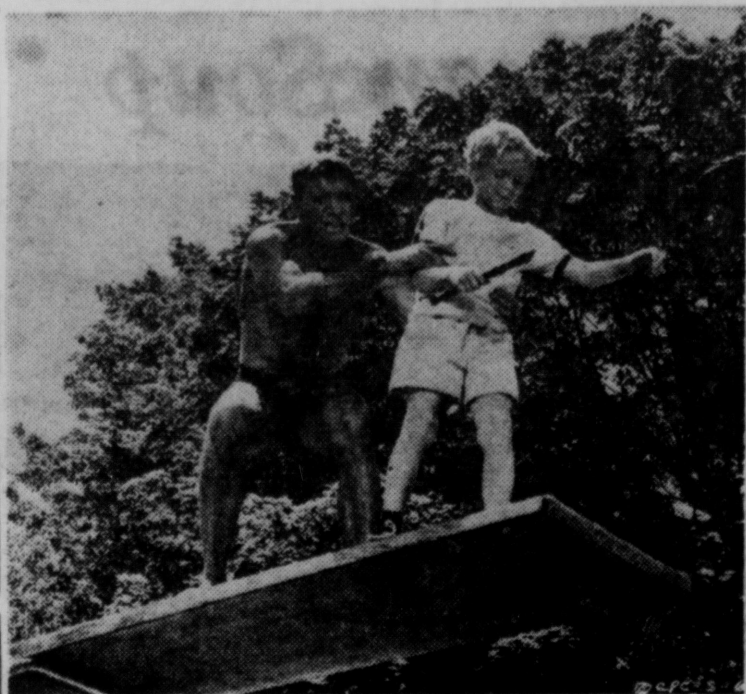

¾ cup stuffed green olives, sliced

2 cans (3 ounces each) chow mein noodles

Brown chicken pieces well in skillet over moderate heat in ¼ cup butter or margarine; turn as needed to brown evenly. Arrange pieces in shallow 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with paprika, salt and pepper. Add remaining butter or margarine to pan drippings. Add mushrooms and saute lightly. Blend in flour. Add gravy, half and half, and olives; mix and eat. Pour over chicken. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it to edges of casserole to seal well. Bake in moderate oven (350 F.) until chicken is tender, about 40 minutes. Uncover; bake 10 minutes longer. Place chow mein noodles in shallow baking pan; heat in oven about 10 minutes. Serve chicken and sauce over noodles. Yields: 6 servings.

BURT LANCASTER lends a steadying hand to young Michael Kearney in a scene from "The Swimmer," holding forth currently at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. Janice Rule also stars in John Cheever's short story about a man's symbolic odyssey (via neighbor's swimming pools) for self-discovery.

MOVIES

The Swimmer

The scene is Eastern exurbia, with its slickly manicured lawns, Ferrari-and-station-wagon-filled garages, and outside swimming pools. Burt Lancaster is the swimmer of the title and, at 40, he's an out-of-work adman. One day he inexplicably finds himself eight miles from home dressed only in swimming trunks. Suddenly obsessed with the notion of trying to capture his former security and happiness via his neighbors' swimming pools, he takes an unearthly route home by splashing in and out of pool after pool.

On this mid-summer Sunday he swims at length, and then, warmly welcomed, stops for a chat here and there. Some people he seems not to have seen for some time and the receptions accorded him by others puzzle him. A woman denounces him bitterly for his neglect of her now dead son; a lonely youngster on a big estate tries to detain him; he meets an elderly nudist couple; a pretty teenager tells of a crush she has had on him; supposed friends needle him with cruel remarks about his wife and daughters; he quarrels with his ex-mistress; he is insulted by tradesmen whose bills he has not paid.

As the swimmer's self-imposed odyssey draws inexorably to a haunting close, a life of futility and frustration is exposed, and the ending brings a confrontation with the dreadful reality that Lancaster's unmoored mind has been unable to face.

If you read John Cheever's well-penned short story on which the film is based, you'll already know how this acrid, desolate film ends. It's now at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema.

What's So Bad About Feeling Good?

Fun City is the setting for this hippie comedy, but it's a Gotham which even native New Yorkers or those of us who have visited there may never have viewed. The zany antics in "What's So Bad About Feeling Good?" now at Kingston's Community Theatre, take us to such unlikely places as inside Miss Liberty's lofty torch, a tramp steamer, a log in the East River, atop the Pan Am building, a stage in the first concert hall in New York, and the interiors of some of Greenwich Village's gamiest fun-and-games preserves.

In an East Village pad, we find a motley assortment of hippies and other proponents of non-involvement and despair—adult dropouts from Madison Avenue and elsewhere, lining in carefree, communal abandon. In through the window flies a Central American toucan with an exotic and rare virus. The disease is transferred from toucan to the alienated refugees from the rat race and, suddenly, a platonically perfect euphoria sets in.

Way-out and hirsute hipster George Peppard turns happy as a lark. His sloppy chick (Mary Tyler Moore, the "perfect wife" of The Dick Van Dyke Show) turns chic and, between, them, they infect the whole town with laughter and happiness.

The "happiness" virus slows industry and commerce to a standstill. The Government can't have that, of course, so it sends in comic Dom DeLuise as its investigator to restore the proper amount of morose and sullen chaos.

A droll sense of humor pops up more often than not in the movie which is heavy on fantasy comedy. One example: the sound track plays "The Dragnet Theme" whenever the fuzz appear. There's also a fine bit by actor John McMartin doing a caricature of a Lindsay-like mayor.

The Pink Jungle

Off we go on a brisk adventure comedy as an American photographer and his model, stranded in the wilds of South America, join a con man in a search for a lost diamond mine.

Involved in the action are James Garner as a highly-paid glamor photographer assigned to photograph a cover girl, the beautiful and sophisticated Eva Renzi, in the jungle wilds of South America to promote a new line of cosmetics. But along come George Kennedy and Nigel Green to entrap the city slickers in a mad safari to uncover a mine burgeoning with those jewels so often reserved for the third finger, left hand.

As the plot unrolls at the Community Theatre currently, we find the Madison Avenue types arriving by helicopter in one of the world's most primitive wildernesses with a load of lipsticks. While Garner is detained by customs men, who suspect he's a CIA agent, the helicopter is stolen by a devil-may-care adventurer (George Kennedy, who won an Oscar in "Cool Hand Luke"). With no transportation back home available for a week, the photog and his model are just bored enough to take off with Kennedy when he shows up again, after crashing the plane, with a story about a lost mine. With tongue-in-cheek, the sophisticates join him in the jungle on a treasure search.

We won't spoil it for you by telling you whether they find the diamonds or not, what happens when they meet up with revolutionaries and communists, or how it all ends. Suffice it to say that the cast is attractive (Kennedy even does a mean cha-cha) and there are plenty of good lines to keep this free-swinging action-comedy moving along briskly.

The Stranger Returns

Here's another corpse-cluttered Italian-made western, starring Tony Anthony again for the second time around as a serapedraped loner known as The Stranger.

As the action opens at the Mayfair Theatre currently, he's a solitary horseman crossing the Southwest, who stumbles on a band of vicious desperadoes. This motley crew, tipped off by postal officials, plan to rob a stagecoach carrying gold. The cinematic gang murders all the passengers, as well as the drivers on the coach, and then hightails it to a Mexican hideout.

CAPTURED BY A GANG of murderous outlaws planning to rob a stagecoach of a fortune in gold, The Stranger (Tony Anthony) is dragged in the dust in one of the scenes from "The Stranger Returns." The new MGM color film, now at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre, is the second adventure movie in which Anthony has starred as The Stranger, the first being "A Stranger in Town."

The Stranger has silently observed the whole sickening scene and he follows the bandits. Naturally, he is caught and tortured but, eventually, exterminates the whole lot of 'em with the help of an itinerant preacher.

Outside of a pretty clever twist about the missing gold that provides a double surprise at the end, "The Stranger Returns" is mostly cruelty and sadism and rates only as an imitation B grade western.

Blood Beast

A special Halloween horror show at the Community Theatre this afternoon only gives us "The Blood Beast from Outer Space." And it's got just about everything supernatural any one plot needs. There's a research center with scientists tracking unidentified flying objects by radar, a six-inch sphere recovered from where a UFO might have landed, strange sounds and lights, scaly claws, giant footprints, and visitors from outer space. Add dead professors, murdered Army majors, missing girls and mysterious strangers delivering parcels. Mix well with a Scotland Yard detective, a character named "Medra," a magazine called "Bikini Girl," and a scientist from the third moon of Jupiter. End result? Genetic experiments and a real horror show for Halloween. (Previewed and reviewed by T. GEERTSEMA)

SHAPELY MARY TYLER MOORE and curvaceous Susan Saint James make use of body English in entertaining nightclub customers in the comedy of New York "hippies," "What's So Bad About Feeling Good?" It's on the double bill at the Community here.

JAMES GARNER as a commercial photographer becomes romantically involved with his professional model, Eva Renzi, in the adventure drama set in the South American jungles, "The Pink Jungle," playing at Kingston's Community Theatre this weekend.

Of Bachelors Old & Young

Opera is becoming an annual occurrence at Kingston High School. Last year students got their first enmasse dose of High C singing when "The Barber of Seville" came to town. Playing to a highly appreciative audience, it whetted the appetites of local students for more of the same.

And so it was that some 900 youthful scholars took time off from their studies here recently to enjoy an operatic situation comedy involving the deception of an old bachelor, a lively young lady impersonating both a demure, timid girl and an unbearable shrew, and a scheming friend of the bachelor. In the plot, too, of course, was a handsome young hero who gets his girl in the final act.

Opera buffs will recognize those characters as the ones needed to make up the ingredients of Donizetti's "Don Pasquale." And it was "Pasquale" that was presented for the students of the Kingston Schools by New York City's Lincoln Center of the Performing Arts.

An excellent production, the comic opera was brightened by Donizetti's music and the considerable comic ability of David Ronson, who played Don Pasquale. Also starring in the cast were Barbara Blanchard as Norina, the young lady in question; Gene West as Ernesto, the handsome hero; and Matthew Murray as the schemer. John Ryan served as musical director and accompanist.

The 900 students attending followed the plot developments with avid attention, punctuated with laughter; gave strong verbal approval to the efforts of the local Humanities Program and the Board of Education, sponsors of the program.

Now that Don Pasquale, that peevish old bachelor, has endeared himself successfully to Kingston students, several other programs in the performing arts are being planned for the coming year in musical and dramatic categories.

Still, with more cultural enrichment looming in the future, local students this week were still discussing the starlit garden set of Pasquale and the total entertainment to be derived from Pasquale's bass, Malatesta's baritone, Ernesto's tenor and Norina's soprano.

Repertory in Action For 'Arts Festival'

The third part of the regional Festival of the Arts gets underway Oct. 28 with an orientation program for interested teachers and administrators in the Liberty High School auditorium. The festival, with Sullivan County, will eventually current events being held in encompass Ulster and other neighboring counties when the pilot program has been completed.

The first two parts of the project concentrated on an "Opera in Residence" program and a series of "Ballet Highlights." The third section is devoted to theatre and will be titled "Repertory in Action."

The orientation meeting Monday is slated for 4:15 p.m.; will be hosted by Dr. Fritz Hess, district principal of Liberty Central School. The session will be conducted by personnel from New York's Lincoln Center, and the "Repertory in Action" presentation will include three excerpts taking as their theme "pretending" in the theatre.

To be presented: the play scene from Shakespeare's "A Mid-summer Night's Dream"; Act One of "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" by Moliere; and a series of improvisations.

Festival of the Arts is being funded under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act Title III program. Totally successful to date, the opera and ballet portions were presented to more than 6,000 students and some 500 teachers.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Let's say you've visited the internationally reputed Walterspiel in Munich or the world-famous Rainbow Room at Rockefeller Center. Unless you've also been to the Senate Room at Kirkland Hotel, right here in historic old Kingston, you haven't completed the circuit. It's an under scored must on your eating-out agenda.

Recently redecorated in multi-shaded blues — rather royal in tones and richly relaxing — the decor actually tends to make one feel a bit blue-blooded... a feeling we can all use on occasion.

Saw Tom Feeney and his exceptionally stunning wife — and could it have been their grandchildren with them, so-o-o well mannered they were, too — while we awaited our dinner which we must admit was well worth the wait.

The lobster in butter sauce with just a squeeze of lemon was truly a chef's masterpiece: creamed onions literally melted in your mouth; and NEVER have we seen such petit scallops... but, oh, so many of them. We would have enjoyed the rice pudding just a wee bit creamier but then we're the type who answers "yes" when asked, "What do you want, everything?"

Stopped at the Dutch Rathskeller Saturday night for the annual October Beer Festival. Evidently nine-tenths of the City of Kingston did, too.

George Svirsky was there with Ed Minasian and Ed's lovely wife who was wearing ever-stylish black, so right for her blonde good looks.

Organist Bob Moore, Don's talented son, made the scene with his young mademoiselle. How times flies. Seems like only hours ago that he was in St. Peter's grammar school.

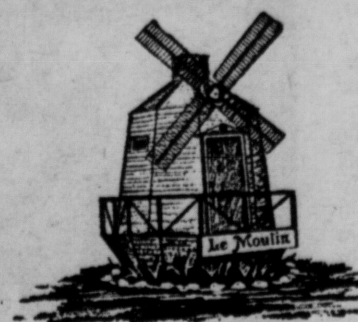

Chatted with Reynolds Carr and his missus who are among those who do not find pastures greener in other areas. They dine out practically every night of the week at 1. Leherb's... 2. Salvucci's... 3. Rathskeller.

Discovered something about Renn we didn't know — he practices at the organ one hour every day and even carries a picture of the Hammond in his wallet. Now that's devotion. And, speaking of devotion, he and his wife have come close to "adopting" organist Billy Dunn who entertains at the Rathskeller.

Renn was wearing a white turtleneck shirt with a dapper black sportcoat and in his left inside coat pocket he carried the most beautiful pendant we've ever seen, a gift from his grandson. Renn only wears the pendant for special occasions, like if he happened to run into his comrade Joe O'Connor. Guess Renn is just practicing good, wholesome Boy Scout sense... always be prepared.

Just had time to wave hello-goodbye to Clyde Wonderly as we made our fond farewells. Clyde was a picture of Job-like poise standing at the foot of the stairs awaiting the nod for a "free" table.

All in all it was a swinging beer festival but, just for the record, we noticed it was the Irish coffee that flowed like wine.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

It's become about as popular as a restaurant could possibly become and all in three short years. Small wonder, since the food is excellent, the location close to unexcelled, and the decor of that variety that is charming and relaxing at one and the same time.

We're talking about the Hickory Manor Steak House which, in spite of a country-like elegance, concentrates primarily on that down-to-earth, meat-and-potatoes cooking so dear to the culinary hearts of most Americans.

Hickory Manor's specialties are all in the steak category, and its menu features almost every variety known to the butchers' union. Charcoal broiled to sizzling perfection, the sirloin delivered to your table is always a masterpiece. Still, our favorite is the Western whose superb flavor moves us to every adjective in the book.

For a change of pace, there's also a wealth of seafood on the menu. Anyone who has ever enjoyed the Davy Jones Platter, featuring lobster tails, shrimp and clams, finds himself returning again for more of the same.

All of the salads at the Hickory Manor are outstanding and excellent and the chef has a way with the dressing, whether it's Russian, Italian or Roquefort. Next time you dine there, try a steak of your choice with fluffy white potatoes and the Caesar salad.

The Hickory Manor comes into its own in autumn. Nature pulls out all the stops then to enhance its location which is at the base of the breathtakingly beautiful Minnewaska Trail. You'll find it on Route 299, four miles west of New Paltz, and designated by a huge, white entrance sign featuring a horse and carriage.

The Manor has become extremely popular with New Paltz State University faculty members and with skiers in season. And, since its owners (the Leones) are ski buffs themselves (they'll close for the first time since opening three years ago for three weeks in January to take a western ski jaunt for themselves), much of the Manor's decor reflects their interest in this winter sport. The bar is dotted with colorful posters of international ski resorts and a large oil painting of a ski scene.

A huge fireplace fronts one dining room done in soft green wainscoting with matching green-and-white flocked wallpaper, and accented with bright red curtains across the bowed window. Another room is a splash of bold color in bright provincial wallpaper and prints of country scenes.

If you try it this week-end, or any other—for that matter—don't overlook the elaborate desserts, especially the most elegant pecan pie we've ever tasted.

NEW PALTZ

TIM HARDIN, who spends a great deal of his time in Woodstock, has appeared at most of the Sound Festivals held there. Recent exposure on national TV and a new Columbia Records contract bode well for Hardin, who very well may become one of the top names in music in the year ahead.

RECORDS

Hardin Ready to Sing HIS Hits

By MARY CAMPBELL

Tim Hardin is on a plateau, ready at this moment to go ahead and climb the mountain.

He wrote "If I were a Carpenter" but it took Bobby Darin's recording of it to make it a hit.

But Hardin is pleased because listeners were asking—and finding out—who wrote that song they liked. "I became more famous than I should have, considering the size of a hit it was. Look at 'Harper Valley PTA,' nobody knows who wrote it and it sold like crazy.

"I'll eventually become very popular if I keep singing as good as I'm singing now. I'm sure the reason that it didn't happen before is because of the way I sounded on records."

Hardin doesn't put his songs under a label like "contemporary folk," since his songs are autobiographical. "I'm alone in what I write; there's no way to fit a genre to it. Why I play and sing and the processes that my thoughts go through so that the music can exist is not part of any general factors of origin."

But he's not stressing this idea of being unique. What he is stressing is that in the future he will record the songs that he writes and he hopes, intends and believes that his recordings of them will be the hits.

"Now it is going to be that the whole thing is an entity, one connected effect. My singing is going to be necessary for the writing to exist and vice versa."

A lot of listeners interested in "the new music," or contemporary folk or gentle rock or whatever you call it, know Hardin also as the composer and lyricist of other songs they like: "Misty Roses," "The Lady Came from Baltimore," "Green Rocky Road," "Black-Sheep Boy," etc.

"Atco bought some tapes made six years ago and put out an album. You can still tell it's me; actually it is more like the way I sing now than the first two albums on Verve, which followed it. I was ill at the time of recording both of them and there's less energy on them, less sharpness, less excitement."

Verve also put out a third album from a concert Hardin gave last spring at Town Hall in

New York. He likes it better than the other two, but he thinks his next album, his first under a new contract with Columbia, will be the best of the lot. "I went down to Nashville and recorded a couple of things. I have a lot of new material and a lot that is not finished.

"My health is firmed up now and my voice is not only a lot stronger than it's ever been, but I'm writing better."

One thing is certain, his later writing is less simple.

For one thing, Hardin, who is 26, is writing lyrics in sentences and paragraphs now. Asked if there's also a difference in mood, he says, "Since I write about myself or at least through myself I would say that what you'll hear now has more chance to be a joyful realization in what will remain always to be serious thoughts. I don't ever have a giggling response in mind when I'm writing or singing or considering an idea to communicate to an audience."

Bouncy Bash Tonight

There's only one place to be tonight and that's at a party that promises to be the granddaddy of all parties. It's a fall fling of mammoth proportions and the evening's festivities begin at 8:30 at the Woodstock Playhouse.

Billed as a Harvest Celebration, it's in the tradition of such famed past Woodstock events as the now defunct Woodstock Foundation plays and the Maverick festivals. By the time the evening is over, it should have established itself as a memorable happening and added to the coffers of the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, as well, since it's being tossed as a benefit for that worthwhile cultural endeavor.

A host of Woodstock's most celebrated painters have been involved in the decor for the evening and, in keeping with the harvest theme, have provided colorful and artistic decorations. The central motif of the celebration, Bruegel's "Harvesters," will be projected bigger than life on the cyclorama of the Playhouse stage. Joining the "Harvesters" will be its companion piece, "Wedding Dance." Artificial moonlight and the proper atmosphere to put participants in a dancing mood will be created by the magic of the Playhouse's lighting equipment.

Spicy Menu

And what menu is in store for the evening! Kegs of good draft beer, raw cider straight from the barrel, and that specialty of this October season—Bauernwurst sausage on rye or pumpernickel rolls with sauerkraut. To top that off, there'll be crunchy waffles with apple butter and whipped cream.

Round and square dancing is on the agenda to the music of James Platt and his band from up Arkville way. There'll also be various and sundry games, pert waitresses from all over the area, baskets of apples and pumpkins, and—among other entertainments—the Amerscot Highland Pipe Band to tootle in the season.

Sounds like a good, old-fashioned, bouncy bash, full of fun and surprises . . . and a party that's not to be missed. Why not join the crowd at the Harvest Festival tonight at the Woodstock Playhouse? You'll have a ball; the donations of $5 per person are tax-deductible; and all proceeds go to supporting your local repertory theatre.

COLLAGE by Paltz student Peter Strafaci, of Hempstead, is one of 45 photographs included in traveling exhibit of photo art by scholars at the State University College in

New Paltz Photo Art Travelling in West

A touring exhibit of 45 photographs as art, created by students at State University College, will be shown through next June in seven western colleges and universities. Dr. Henry Raleigh, art division chairman at New Paltz, announced this week.

The traveling show, exhibited last year at eight universities and art schools in the east and mid-west, opened this month at the University of Nebraska and will later visit New Mexico State University, the Museum Art School, Portland, Ore., California College of Arts and Crafts, Oakland, the University of California, Berkeley, Arizona State University, and University of California at Riverside.

The show, organized by John Seaholm, New Paltz instructor of photography, represents a variety of approaches and techniques such as noncamera photographs, motion studies with slow shutter speeds, multiple imagery, selective focus, negative prints, collage, high contrast, and other creative methods and concepts.

Seaholm with five other artists this summer, produced a short film titled "Requiem for a Friendly Ball in an Alien Society," which was shown at a Festival of Films last month in New York. Seaholm was involved primarily with camera work and editing.

The photographer worked with others attending a motion picture workshop at New York University. Members of his group were from South Africa, Michigan and Washington, D. C., as well as New York. The workshop included lectures and films dealing with recent trends in film-making.

"The use of manipulative techniques in camera and non-camera photography enables Paltz the artist to transform commonplace, everyday reality into new expressive images," Seaholm said. He said the process parallels those of other media such as painting and printmaking and that this exploratory process is a continuing one in photographic education at New

At OCS: 'Fried Fish' Sculpture

The sculpture piece that fascinated them most was small cube with a circular screen, providing infinite color patterns. Small wonder it was the electric apple of their eyes, for it utilized a motor-driven wheel of Christmas bulbs and a brightly painted cone to create its effects.

The occasion was a talk-presented recently by kinetic sculptor Richard Hogle at Onteora High School. Hogle brought a wide assortment of electronic mysteries along to the Boiceville school after accepting an invitation to speak from Mrs. Aletta Vett, Onteora painting teacher and a personal friend.

Once the student audience, including art students, had assembled, the house lights dimmed to provide contrast to the pulsating lights that flashed from Hogle's constructions of plastic and glass. Three colored elephant bulbs flashed to the different frequencies of the sculptor's voice as he related his experience with this new art form—a form which usually employs mechanical or electrical movement.

Scientific as well as artistic terms were used to describe the workings of the light sculptures Hogle exhibited. One of his early works, a plastic representation of a TV dinner, was wired to flash random light potatoes and "fried fish," while a large, frosted cube on the floor swirled with red geometric patterns.

Hogle's talk drew an encore speech and an informal question period. And, as he turned off his constructions and departed the scene, it was evident that he had brought more than a little electricity into the lives of his audience with his unscheduled, stimulating and spontaneous light-show happening. For students and teachers alike had thoroughly enjoyed the awe-inspiring electrical display.

About the Cover

Take an old house with peeling paint, sagging steps and an eerie look of abandonment and what have you got? The perfect place for a Halloween party, of course.

Freeman photographer Bob Haines crossed the river and took his camera to Rhinebeck this week to snap TEMPO's cover. And with bewitching nights fast approaching, his picture of witches ready to take off from a porch railing and fly across the moon on their broomstick brings alive the world of spirits and haunted houses.

And ghosts and goblins aplenty will be in attendance for the Halloween Haunted House at 65 East Market in Rhinebeck on Oct. 30 and 31. Those are the dates for witches to brew, strange creatures to crawl and stalk, and the dead to walk. Even the Thing may put in an appearance for this gala event, a Halloween happening being jointly sponsored by the Northern Dutchess Hospital Mothers' Club and the Rhinebeck Rotary.

Spooky attractions galore await those who join in the fun and everyone's invited. The old house will be transformed into a Halloween setting, and only a small donation is required on either date to join in the fun any time from 4 p.m. to 12 midnight. Whip up a costume and plan to attend.

DCC Faculty In Art Show

An exhibition of arts and crafts by faculty members at Dutchess Community College has just closed in the Dutchess Hall gallery at DCC.

The show, which was free and open to the general public, concluded Wednesday.

Included were drawings, paintings, sculpture, ceramics, illustrations, and photographs.

"The educational purpose of this exhibit was a simple but important one," commented William J. Stigall Jr., assistant professor of art history at Dutchess. "It was to establish in the minds of students the teaching authority and credentials of instructors. The various works spoke for themselves."

The exhibitors were Arthur R. Askue, Robert L. Benney, Lewis A. Krevolin, David Lax, Alex Martin, A. Leslie Ross, and Fred J. Sass.

Reproductions and exhibits were by courtesy of the Abbott Collection, Associated American Artists, the Excalibur Foundry, Fawcett Publications, Grand Central Art Galleries, the Grossman Collection, Reader's Digest, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, and the Stelman Collection.

Marx Emerges As 'Fallible'

MARX. By Robert Payne. Simon and Schuster. $10.

It would be difficult for anyone, even a hard-line Communist, to feel inspired by the personality of Karl Marx after reading an obviously fair biography which portrays, probably as never before, the all-too-human basis of his character.

Payne, whose interest in the human condition and whose literary versatility have enabled him to write a series of highly readable books on subjects ranging from Albert Schweitzer to Lenin, has achieved the difficult goal of making Marx a credible and very fallible mortal rather than the stereotype titan of world revolution.

With great patience, Payne has caught and buttressed with impressive research the many aspects, often repelling, of his subject. While certainly not a hostile witness, Payne remove his transforming disguise of earth-shaking radical and makes him stand on his own far-from-secure legs.

Not Inventive

Marx was not a particularly original thinker. Payne finds at least 15 known sources for "The Communist Manifesto." Marx did not even invent the phrase "dictatorship of the proletariat." And his use of "historical materialism" was so subject to vague interpretation that the loyal Friedrich Engels protested its common misapplication.

Although he had a good many loyal friends of whom he was quite fond in his own way, his absolute determination to dominate any movement with which he was connected led him to savage and generally unfair attacks on several whom he normally should have considered close allies—Lassalle and Proudhon, for instance.

And his philosophical and economic integrity was always subject to his aim as a propagandist and antagonist. If Payne does not go to the trouble of analyzing "Das Kapital" in detail, it probably is because he does not consider it as much more than very special pleading.

Murder in Suburbia

EXPENSIVE PEOPLE. By Joyce Carol Oates. Vanguard. $5.95.

A horror story from suburbia? Well, why not?

But this is not ordinary suburbia. It is that special outward fringe beyond the real estate developments where things start to be a bit exclusive, but not quite as exclusive as in the real "country places."

The people in this novel fit the scene. The father, Elwood Everett, from a wealthy but obscure Philadelphia family, is one of those smooth, swaggering executives who keep shifting from one corporation to another (and one semi-exclusive suburb to another). The mother, of obscure European origin, is a very minor writer under the name Natashya Romanov. She never makes the grade among the tweedy, blonde, baritone-voiced ladies of the country club set.

Introducing Richard

Then there is Richard, their son, who passes his 11th birthday during this story, a puny boy who is shoved into prep schools among other ineffective kids. He has a high intelligence quotient, misused, and has made a skilled game of eavesdropping on his parents' frequent quarrels.

Richard becomes a murderer. The story is narrated seven years after the murder, by Richard himself—no one believed his boyish confession—who has become at 18 a fat, disintegrating derelict in a rented room.

We've had a good many novels about the moral confusion of suburbia, but this one is off the usual pattern. It spikes the pretensions of the "better set," takes some passing swipes at social and literary flummery, and has a narrative suspense of its own. The author's skill, previously demonstrated, is at full force in this unusual tale.
